

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. # REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF FINANCE AND JUSTICE.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND JUSTICE,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Manila, P. I., November 1, 1902,

The PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

GENTLEMEN: I hereby submit a report on matters appertaining to the department of finance and justice in the Philippine Islands during the period from October 15, 1901, to September 30, 1902.

The statistics herein contained will be those prior to the last-named date, except when otherwise stated. The first-named date is the beginning of the period covered by this report, inasmuch as matters prior to that date were included in the second report of the Philippine Commission to the Secretary of War.

This report includes many matters of a legislative character, as well as those that are purely administrative, both because I have occupied two positions—that of a member of the legislative body and that of an administrative official—and because this report is to be attached to the report of the Commission to the Secretary of War, and will contain data of transactions appertaining to this department, both legislative and administrative.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

At the date of the last report of the Philippine Commission to the Secretary of War a complete judicial system had been organized covering the whole archipelago, the municipal code providing for the trial of violators of municipal ordinances by the presidentes, other laws authorizing the appointment of justices of the peace for trial of minor offenses and civil actions involving small amounts and the preliminary investigation of higher crimes, one justice of the peace being provided for every municipality, and creating courts of first instance that are courts of record and of general jurisdiction, one being provided for each province, but the city of Manila having two judges, courts of first instance holding sessions at least twice a year in the smaller provinces and in the more important ones three or four times, and the whole archipelago divided into 14 judicial districts outside the city of Manila, one judge for each judicial district, with a special tribunal for disposing of arrearages of litigation in the island of Negros, and a supreme court, consisting of a chief justice and six associate justices, with adequate provisions for reporting the decisions of the supreme court, and for representation of the government, general and local, in all litigation by the attorney-general, solicitorgeneral, and their assistants, and provincial fiscals, with a special municipal system of courts for the city of Manila and with a notarial system for the archipelago. The system has now been in complete operation for something more than one year. The new code of civil procedure, mentioned in the Commission's former report, has been in operation for one year, and experience has demonstrated that the judicial system largely meets the needs of the islands. The judges have been in the main able, industrious, upright, and devoted to their work.

All the Filipino judges of the supreme court and courts of first instance who were originally appointed, with one exception, are still in office and have fulfilled the expectations of the Commission entertained at the time of their appointment. While they have found it difficult to expedite proceedings in accordance with American methods and to adapt themselves to the necessary new procedure, they have made very rapid improvement in this respect and in acquiring the English language. With perhaps one exception, they have administered the law fearlessly and ably, dealing with their own people and with Americans with an even hand. It is believed that the wisdom of appointing a considerable number of Filipinos judges has been aptly vindicated by experience and that in the process of time the proportion of Filipino judges may be increased without impairing the efficiency of the administration of justice. The new code of procedure in civil actions and special proceedings has greatly facilitated the dispatch of business, and all the courts are teaching the people a needed lesson of subordination to law and that their rights of person and property can safely be reposed in the courts and will be vindicated and protected therein without resorting to violence; and this is a new condition in the Philippine Islands.

The fiscals, or prosecuting officers in the provinces, are without exception Filipinos. While some who were appointed have been found incompetent and have been superseded by others, in the main these officials have rendered useful and valuable services, and are each day becoming more efficient as they become more familiar with American methods.

The justices of the peace necessarily find great difficulty in performing their duties satisfactorily, but they are gradually receiving instruction in that behalf from the judges of the courts of first instance, and are to be soon supplied with a manual, to be prepared by the attorney-general, defining particularly their methods of procedure. Appeals are made easy and inexpensive, so that errors committed by justices of the peace can readily be corrected in the higher courts.

NEW LEGISLATION RELATING TO COURTS.

The Spanish law upon the subject of libel and slander was exceedingly incomplete and filled with incongruities, and provided banishment as one of the principal penalties. To remedy these defects, on October 24, 1901, act No. 277 was passed defining the law of libel, making it a misdemeanor, giving a right of civil action therefor, making obscene or indecent publications misdemeanors, prohibiting the right to recover civil damages in a criminal prosecution for libel, and providing reasonable penalties by fine or imprisonment, substantially as in the United States. Under the Spanish law the truth could not be shown in a defense of a criminal prosecution for libel. Under act 277 the defendant is entitled to an acquittal upon showing the truth to be as charged in the libel, and that the matter charged as libelous is published for good motives and justifiable ends. There have been but two prosecutions under the act, one of the editor and publisher of an American newspaper and the other of the editor and publisher of a Spanish newspaper. Both resulted in convictions, which have greatly improved the tone and character of the newspapers in the islands.

On November 1, 1901, an act was passed "providing an inexpensive method of administration upon the estates of civil employees of the Philippine government who are citizens of the United States and who die in the service of the insular government, leaving small estates upon which no regular administration is deemed advisable." The administration in such case is confided to the treasurer of the Philippine Archipelago, who administers the estates in a very inexpensive manner, and, after payment of the debts and expenses, remits the amount of the estate left in his hands to the lawful heirs.

On November 4, 1901, act No. 292 was passed, entitled "An act defining the crimes of treason, insurrection, sedition, conspiracies to commit such crimes, seditious utterances, whether written or spoken, the formation of secret political societies, the administering or taking of oaths to commit crimes or to prevent the discovery of the same, and the violations of oaths of allegiance, and prescribing punishment therefor." In the main this act is based upon the provisions of the United States statutes covering the same subject, and upon the provisions of the acts of the legislatures of the several States. Sections 9 and 10 introduce features not common in the United States.

Section 9 provides that—All persons who shall meet together for the purpose of forming, or who shall form any secret society or who shall after the passage of this act continue membership in a society already formed having for its object, in whole or in part, the promotion of treason, rebellion or sedition, or the promulgation of any political opinion or policy, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

It will be observed that this section does not prohibit secret societies or the open promulgation of political opinion or policy, but only membership in a secret society "having for its object, in whole or in part, the promotion of treason, rebellion, or sedition, or the promulgation of any political opinion or policy." Sedition and rebellion in the Philippine Islands have always been promoted through the agency of secret societies, and it is exceedingly difficult to draw the line between a secret society having for its object the promotion of political opinion and one having for its object the promotion of rebellion and sedition; the two are usually combined. The method adopted by such societies for promulgating political opinions or policies has been almost invariably by promoting rebellion or sedition through secret associations. It was considered desirable that the promulgation of political opinion or policy should be open, public, and known, not secret, stealthy, and surreptitious. It is believed that actual conditions required this legislation.

Section 10 makes it unlawful for any person to advocate orally or by writing or printing or by like methods the independence of the Philippine Islands or their separation from the United States, either by peaceable or forcible means, or to print, publish, or circulate any handbill, newspaper, or other publication advocating such independence or separation; but this prohibition, by its terms, is to continue in force only until it has been officially proclaimed that a state of war or insurrection against the authority or sovereignty of the United States no longer exists in the Philippine Islands. Such proclamation having been issued by the President on the 4th day of July, 1902, section 10 is no longer operative. But while a state of war existed here it was highly dangerous to allow organizations, parties, and the press to agitate the separation of the islands from the United States. Such agitation directly tended to stimulate and promote the insurrection and to continue it. Peaceful agitators at such a time cooperated most effectually with the armed agitators in the jungle. It is not believed that in any country during the time of war an agitation of such a character would be tolerated, least of all in one where people were untrained in the exercise of free speech and were certain in their first enjoyment of it to indulge in excesses.

Under this act there has been one prosecution, followed by conviction, of the editor and publisher of an American newspaper in Manila. That newspaper had long adopted a policy of charging Filipinos who were appointed to office with wholesale corruption, and had continually indulged in arraignment of every measure that was adopted for the pacification of the islands. It had attempted to incite to the highest degree hostility between Americans and Filipinos and to intensify prejudices that inevitably existed. other newspaper has been prosecuted under the act. having terminated, it is improbable that any further prosecution of newspapers for sedition will be necessary. Quite a number of Filipinos who had taken the oath of allegiance and had violated it by aiding in the insurrection-secreting arms, furnishing money and information to the insurgents—were prosecuted, and such as were proven guilty were convicted, and others were acquitted. But the amnesty proclamation issued by the President on the 4th day of July, 1902, released those who had been so convicted for all offenses committed prior to the 1st day of May, 1902. If further prosecutions of Filipinos are necessary for seditious offenses committed hereafter, it will be mainly by reason of the connection of some restless Filipinos with secret societies having for their object political agitation, coupled with robbery, assassination, and plunder of those who will not join in the agitation.

On February 6, 1902, the customs administrative act was passed, chapter 23 of which provides for the creation of a court of customs appeals, of which the secretary of finance and justice should be president, one of the judges of the supreme court to be an associate judge, and a third judge to be appointed who should also act as a clerk of the court. To that court was given exclusive jurisdiction of all criminal offenses arising out of the administration of the law relating to the payment and collection of customs duties, and of all appeals from the ruling of the collector of customs for the Philippine Archipelago as to classification of imported or exported merchandise, and as to the imposition, administratively, of fines and penalties or decrees of forfeiture or confiscation by the collector of customs whenever such fines, penalties, and forfeitures or confiscations should exceed $500 in amount. Section 288 provides, among other things, as follows:

The remedy by appeal to the court of customs appeals is exclusive of all other remedies upon all questions arising relating to the customs duties, or the administration thereof, under this act. No right of action shall exist on the part of the owner, importer, exporter, or consignee to recover back any duties, fees, exactions, or fines by him or them paid, except by means of appeal in accordance with the provisions of this act. No appeal shall lie to any tribunal from the judgment of the court of customs appeals, nor shall any tribunal have the right to review its decisions or proceedings in any form.

Under the general provisions of the act the action of any collector of customs is reviewable by the collector of customs for the Philippine Archipelago, so that all questions arising at the different ports of entry come to Manila for determination by the insular collector. It was considered expedient, therefore, that all the litigation arising out of the customs administrative act should be carried on at Manila and in a single court where there would be uniformity of decision and speedy action.

The court was organized soon after the passage of the act, and has down to date disposed of every original action or appeal pending therein. It is thought that no better system for the economical, uniform, and speedy determination of such questions, under the conditions that exist in these islands, can at present be devised. The earlier appeals that came into that court raised to a large extent questions involved in the "Insular cases" recently decided by the Supreme Court of the United States. The decisions of the court of customs appeals in the cases referred to, involving all phases of those questions, are hereto attached and marked "Exhibit A."

On May 9, 1902, act No. 396 was passed increasing the number of judges of the courts of first instance, and fixing the salaries of the additional judges provided for. Experience demonstrated that two judges of the court of first instance were unable to keep abreast of the business in the city of Manila. One additional judge was, therefore, provided for that court. It was likewise found that more or less judges of other courts of first instance would ordinarily be absent from their post of duty, by reason of illness or earned leave of absence, and that in order to meet such difficulties, and also to relieve the pressure of accumulated business in some of the districts, the appointment of four additional judges was necessary who could be assigned to such province, from time to time, as might be necessary. probable that eventually the archipelago may be redistricted, but there has not yet been sufficient experience to demonstrate upon what. lines such redistricting should be made. The operation of the act has been to enable the courts regularly to be carried on in all the provinces and to dispose of arrearages of old litigation that had accumulated during the latter portion of the Spanish régime and during the prevalence of the war.

The salary of the additional judge appointed for the city of Manila was made $5,500, the same salary as the other judges of that court receive. The salaries of the judges at large were fixed at $4,500. Under this act, Hon. Byron S. Ambler, of Ohio, was appointed as additional judge for the city of Manila, and Hon. William H. Pope, of New Mexico, Hon. William S. Norris, of Nebraska, Hon. James H. Blount, jr., of Georgia, have been appointed as judges at large, leaving one vacancy in that class of judges. Judge Blount has served for something over a year as judge of the first judicial district, and has received this promotion. To succeed him Hon. Adolph Wislizenus, of Missouri, has been appointed judge of the court of first instance for the first judicial district. Hon. G. H. Whitsett, judge of the fourteenth judicial district, has been obliged to return home on account of illness in his family, and has been succeeded by Hon. John S. Powell, of Georgia. In the twelfth judicial district, Hon. Juan de Leon has resigned by reason of illness in his family, and the vacancy has not yet been filled, the duties of judge in that judicial district being temporarily performed by Judge Pope. Judge John S. Powell long served in the Army of the United States in the Philippine Islands.

For the court of customs appeals, Chief Justice Arellano has been assigned as one of the judges, and Hon. Amasa S. Crossfield, of Minnesota, has been appointed as the third judge and clerk. Crossfield was prior to his appointment city assessor and collector of the city of Manila, and before that time collector of customs for the port of Cebu, and was a captain in the army of the United States in the Philippines.

The work of the special court mentioned in the Commission's last former report, which was provided for disposing of the arrearages of litigation in the island of Negros, has been completed, all arrearages having been finally disposed of, and the court has by operation of law ceased to exist. Its judge has been promoted temporarily to the position of judge at large and is now disposing of about 800 old cases pending in the province of Capiz.

Admiralty jurisdiction had been largely exercised by provost courts organized during the military régime, and it was deemed necessary to make adequate provision for the criminal admiralty jurisdiction in courts of first instance, they having, by virtue of act No. 136, original civil jurisdiction in admiralty. Accordingly on May 16, 1902, an act was passed extending to courts of first instance jurisdiction over maritime offenses, section 1 of which confers upon courts of first instance iurisdiction-of all crimes and offenses committed on the high seas or beyond the jurisdiction of any country or within any of the navigable waters of the Philippine Archipelago, on board a ship or water craft of any kind, registered or licensed, in the Philippine Islands, in accordance with the laws thereof. The jurisdiction herein conferred may be exercised by the court of first instance in any province into which the ship or water craft upon which the crime or offense was committed shall come after the commission thereof: Provided, nevertheless, That the court first lawfully taking cognizance thereof shall have jurisdiction of the same to the exclusion of all other courts in the Philippine Islands.

Section 2 of the act transferred to courts of first instance all civil actions pending in provost courts and all jurisdiction over criminal actions in admiralty except such as might arise in any province or district exclusively under military control, wherein the jurisdiction of provost courts was made concurrent with that of courts of first instance over criminal actions in admiralty; but as the whole archipelago, aside from the Moro country, is now organized under civil government, maritime and admiralty jurisdiction over criminal and civil actions is now fixed in the ordinary civil courts.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

The report of the attorney-general is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit 1." In its statements it covers the organization of the office and the character and volume of the business transacted therein from the date of the organization of the office, on July 16, 1901, to September 1, 1902. The attorney-general has during that period rendered to the civil governor, the heads of departments and members of the Commission and other civil officers 408 written opinions; has returned to the supreme court 402 cases therein pending, with the opinion of the solicitor-general thereon; has briefed and argued in the supreme court 67 cases; has appointed 218 subordinate officials for courts of first instance; considered and made recommendations to the governor upon 171 applications for pardon, and has sent out 2,068 other official communications. The attorney-general's office has exercised a general supervision over the fiscals of the different provinces, the supervisor of fiscals and the assistant attorney-general going from province to province, as the occasion required, to assist in important prosecutions or to investigate matters pertaining to the administration of justice in courts of first instance.

CRIMINAL CODE.

A new criminal code has been prepared by Commissioner Wright and reviewed by him, together with the president of the Commission and Commissioner Ide, the lawyers of the Commission. It is now substantially ready for enactment, and will come up for public hearing within a very few weeks, and doubtless will be enacted and in force before the 1st day of January, 1903. Comment thereon will be reserved till another report.

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

A new code of criminal procedure has been prepared by Commissioner Wright; but it has not yet been practicable for the Commission to act upon it, owing to the pressure of other work. It will, however, be enacted at the earliest practicable moment.

REGISTRATION OF LAND TITLES.

A bill of 128 sections has been prepared by Commissioner Ide applying to the Philippine Archipelago substantially the principles of the Torrens system of land registration. The bill has been considered in public session, and, after discussion and such amendments as seemed warranted by reason of the discussion, has been passed and goes into effect on the 1st day of January, 1903. The enactment of such legislation here is of the highest importance. Titles and boundaries at present are so uncertain that capital is deterred from investment by reason thereof, important enterprises that otherwise would be undertaken are not entered upon, and rates of interest for loans upon real estate are exceedingly high and loans on such security are often impossible to secure at any rate of interest. The evils of the present system are:

1. Great expense in the investigation of the title and in the transfer.

2. Delay, which often extends so long in the investigation of the title as to prevent a prospective sale.

3. Insecurity. Enormous numbers of homes in the islands are owned without any written evidence of title whatever, and where there is written evidence of title boundaries are uncertain. The opinions of lawyers who investigate titles furnish little security.

4. There is a constant lengthening of the chain of deeds to be examined, increasing the expense and delay.

5. These defects operate as a perpetual tax upon the holder of real estate, depreciate its value, and make it an exceedingly slow asset.

Under the Torrens system, as proposed to be established here, the land owner receives a certificate after due investigation of the title by a tribunal instituted for that purpose, which certificate is as simple as a certificate of stock in a corporation, showing on its face in whom the title is vested and also all the liens or other interests existing in the premises. The correctness of this certificate is guaranteed by law, the government standing back of it, and having an assurance fund, created by imposing upon those who bring their lands under the system a small percentage of the value of the land at the time the land is brought under the operation of the act, which accumulated fund operates as a fund to which anyone who loses his land by reason of the act may resort for indemnity.

The advantages of the system may be briefly stated thus:

- 1. Diminution of expense.—The expense of the official registration probably will not exceed the cost of a single transfer under the present system, and in all subsequent transfers the expense will be much less than now.
- 2. Speed.—In the generality of cases the transfer or mortgage, including the examination of titles, may all be completed in a very short time, and without the aid of counsel.
- 3. Security.—The title is cleared at every transfer; there is no long chain of deeds to be examined, and the title is guaranteed by the law and is unassailable.
- 4. No deeds are recorded; the original or duplicate deed is filed and left with the register, whereby the records are greatly shortened.
- 5. Such a safe, short, and inexpensive method of transfer increases the value of the land, and makes it a much quicker asset, and one upon which money can be borrowed at a lower rate of interest.

The general principles of the act perhaps may be briefly stated

- 1. An examination of title by a court of competent jurisdiction, after actual notice to all occupants and adjoining owners, and constructive notice to all the world by publication.
  - 2. Registration of the title as found upon such examination.
  - 3. Issuance of a certificate of title.
  - 4. Reregistration of title upon further subsequent transfer.
- 5. Notice upon the certificate of any matter affecting the title, claims not registered having no validity.
  - 6. Indemnity against loss out of an assurance fund.

INSULAR COLD STORAGE AND ICE PLANT.

This plant was originally erected out of insular funds, by direction of the Secretary of War, primarily for the purpose of furnishing ice for the use of the army and navy in the Philippines. Having been built from insular funds, it was upon its completion, by direction of the Secretary of War, passed over to the insular government for administration. The contract made between the insular government and the military authorities for the fiscal year 1902 has been, with minor changes, renewed for the fiscal year 1903. Under that contract the army receives ice at the rate of one-half cent per pound and cold storage at the rate of  $3\frac{1}{2}$  cents per cubic foot per month, which prices have resulted in saving practically one-half the expense for ice and cold storage by the army in the Philippines.

The navy in these islands receives such ice and cold storage as it requires at the same prices. Likewise employees of the civil government and officers and soldiers of the Army of the United States are entitled to purchase ice at the same price of one-half cent per pound. It has not been deemed advisable to enter into general competition with existing industries for the sale of ice and cold storage to the general public, but ice has been furnished to such people as cared to go to the plant to receive it at 1 cent per pound, all moneys herein stated being moneys of the United States.

A full and complete report of Capt. Leon S. Roudiez, superintendent of the insular cold storage and ice plant, of its revenues and expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit II."

The supplemental report of Captain Roudiez is also annexed and marked "Exhibit III," bringing the report down to the 31st day of August, 1902. From these exhibits it appears that the total revenues from July 1, 1901, to August 31, 1902, were $365,689.45, and the total expenditures for the same period were $218,739.70, leaving an excess of revenues over expenditures of $146,949.75.

The total cost of the construction and equipment of the plant down to the 1st day of September, 1902, including some new erections now in process of construction, is $689,336.38.

In addition to this cost the following elements need to be taken into consideration: First, in the figures above given nothing is included for the value of the lot upon which the plant stands. The lot is situated upon the Pasig River, between two of the bridges across it, and occupying the whole space between the two bridges, and having a long frontage upon the principal street and a long water frontage so that supplies can be loaded and unloaded directly upon and from barges and lighters upon the river. Secondly, the materials for its construction and equipment were all imported free of duty, and much of the material was transported upon the army transports without charge for freight. It is considered a conservative estimate to say that it would be impossible for a private individual or corporation to procure as eligible a site as the one in question and to import the material necessary for the construction and equipment, paying duties and cost of transportation, for less than $1,000,000 in United States currency.

If the property were owned by a private individual or corporation it would doubtless enter into competition with the existing establishments for the supply of ice and cold storage to the general public, and could be made to earn a larger revenue than at present accrues. It is probable that with the reduction of the United States Army in the Philippine Islands its demand for cold storage may decrease. such case it may be necessary to increase the price of cold storage per cubic foot, the present price having been fixed upon the basis of securing a known and certain return on the property. Should it be deemed advisable by the War Department, the plant could probably be sold at a satisfactory price, with sufficient safeguards to secure ice and cold storage for the Army and Navy and civil employees at rea-At present there are no practical difficulties in the sonable prices. way of the existing system of administration by the Government. The objections to it are mainly theoretical, on the ground that the Government is engaging in a business that ordinarily is conducted by private enterprise.

CURRENCY.

The unsatisfactory condition of the currency now in use in the Philippine Islands is universally conceded by all who are familiar with the facts. No subject connected with the work that is being done here is more pressing for Congressional action than this. The industries of the islands are largely paralyzed by the uncertain and shifting character of the currency. It is impossible for business men to forecast success or failure in their enterprises when they have no stable standard of values. Business men become timid in their transactions, or altogether refuse to make investments, when they have and can have no knowledge as to the value of the returns that will come to them. The uncertainty largely increases the rate of interest on money loaned. The man who one year ago loaned money in local currency, and payable in the same currency, at 25 per cent interest, would receive less than 5 per cent actual interest upon his money, more than 20 per cent having been swallowed up in depreciation in the value of the money that would be returned to him. Such a system is ruinous to both the borrower and the lender.

Government employees complain bitterly that their salaries are reduced because they are paid in local currency, and its value has been steadily depreciating for one year. The insular government finds itself facing a deficit by reason of the shrinkage in the purchasing power of its assets. The constant depreciation in the value of silver, and consequently in the value of local currency of the islands, has been one of the greatest hindrances to business enterprises and to the successful administration of the government, and it is impossible, from any information available, to make any forecast as to whether silver in the markets of the world is to continue to depreciate or whether the bottom has been reached; but it is easy to forecast the results that in any event will ensue from its fluctuating character, which undermines all business calculations.

There is no relief except in a stable currency, and the only stable currency possible is one based upon a gold standard. The Commission in its two former reports urgently recommended the establishment of a gold standard by the coinage of a United States-Filipino peso of the value of a half dollar, money of the United States, containing a small percentage less silver than the Mexican dollar, the percentage being such that its intrinsic value would not at any time warrant its export from the islands for bullion, with a provision for its convertibility into money of the United States at the fixed ratio of two Filipino pesos for $1 in money of the United States, together with convenient subsidiary and minor coins. This recommendation I renew and respectfully urge as the best solution of the currency problem here existing.

A brief summary of the operation upon insular finances of the depreciation in silver in ten months past will show to some degree the difficulties to which the government has been subjected from this cause. During the whole of the calendar year 1901 the government undertook to maintain a uniform ratio for official purposes of $2 of local currency for $1 of money of the United States. But, owing to the depreciation of silver during the latter portion of the year 1901, when January 1, 1902, arrived it was apparent that the official ratio could no longer be maintained at 2 to 1, the revenues upon such a basis being substantially all paid in local currency, because it was much more profitable to use the United States money to purchase local currency than to pay the duties and other taxes in United States money.

Consequently, on January 1, 1902, the official ratio was changed from 2 to 1 to 2.10 local currency to $1 of United States money, the effort being to establish the official ratio upon the same basis as the commercial ratio. But the official ratio at that time, by orders received from the Secretary of War, was fixed for each quarter. It soon became apparent, however, that the local currency had been overvalued in this adjustment, and that the depreciation in silver was still continuing. Public duties in consequence were paid almost wholly in local currency at the official ratio. This depreciation continued throughout the whole of the quarter ending with the 1st day of April, when the ratio was again changed for the succeeding quarter to 2.27 local currency to $1 United States currency. Prior to this time Congress had in the act entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," approved March 8, 1902, provided that the ratio between the two currencies should be fixed once a quarter by proclamation by the civil governor, and it was not in the power of the Commission to change this pro-The ratio of 2.27, as it proved, largely overvalued local currency, taking the period of the whole quarter, so that the commercial value of local currency almost immediately ran below the official On the 1st day of July, 1902, Congress passed an act entitled "An act temporarily to provide for the administration of the affairs of the civil government in the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," wherein it was provided, among other things, that the official ratio between the two currencies might be fixed by proclamation of the governor as often as once in ten days.

The same causes that have above been stated continued to operate, and on July 7 the ratio was changed from 2.27 to 2.35 local currency to $1 United States currency. The same causes continued during the quarter, and on September 23 another change was made from 2.35 to 2.40 local currency to $1 of money of the United States. The same causes continued to operate, so that on the 22d day of October it became necessary again to change the ratio from 2.40 to 2.46 local currency to $1 of money of the United States.

The details of these changes and their effects down to September 30, 1902, are shown in the auditor's report and supplemental statement annexed hereto, and marked, respectively, "Exhibits IV and V."

Each one of the changes in the ratio necessarily operated upon the value of all the local currency in the treasury, and required that the treasurer should at each change be credited with the net amount sufficient to balance the loss thus occasioned. Between January 1, 1902, and October 25, 1902, the aggregate of those losses was $956,750.37\frac{1}{2}, measured in gold dollars, every dollar of which is, not a book loss, but an actual loss, to the treasury, as complete as though the money had been sunk into the bottom of the ocean. The receipts having nearly all been in local currency, because of its overvaluation, during the whole of the ten months referred to, each change marked a diminution in the value of the currency in the treasury. Local currency was necessarily used for the purchase of commodities and payment of salaries and expenses by the insular government—its capacity to purchase such commodities, to pay such salaries and expenses, during that period, unavoidably diminished by the great sum above stated. If the currency had been stable, upon the basis recommended by the Commission, all this loss would have been saved, there would have been no danger of a deficit, and much needed public improvements, to the value of nearly $1,000,000, could have been made which now can not be undertaken.

There are other great embarrassments in a fluctuating currency as imposed upon the government, aside from the actual loss above stated. It is impossible to communicate the changes of ratio to the remote points of the islands immediately upon making the changes; it requires weeks for the information to reach remote points where communication is uncertain and infrequent; and necessarily the receiving and disbursing officers are proceeding, till they receive the information, upon a false basis, and meet with great trouble in the settlement of their accounts with the auditor. Likewise, there is a great opportunity on the part of all receiving and disbursing officers for fraud of such a character as to be almost impossible to discover. At nearly all times it is more profitable to pay in one currency rather than in the other, because a receiving officer who receives payment in United States money, when that money is more valuable than local currency at the official ratio, can sell the money of the United States and receive local currency in exchange therefor at the commercial rate, and pocket the difference between the commercial ratio and the official ratio, making the entries upon his books to appear that he received payments in local currency; and the same thing applies to all disbursing officers. If, on the other hand, it is more profitable to make payment in gold, local currency can be readily exchanged with money changers for gold, or for money of the United States, the difference in that event being provided for by the receiving or disbursing officer making entries to correspond with the financial transactions instead of the actual receipt or disbursement. Receiving and disbursing officers ought not to be exposed to such temptations, nor ought the government to be exposed to the consequent loss.

But the dissatisfaction on the part of the civil employees on account of the fluctuating value in the currency in which they have been paid has been intense. It was not in the power of the Commission or of any other authority to meet those difficulties. If the receipts were in local currency, as they have very largely been during the past ten months, the disbursements must necessarily be in the same currency.

But the difficulties of accounting are very great in the case of an almost continuous fluctuation of the currency. The auditor states

At one time disbursing officers were handling two kinds of currency involving, in effect, five standards of value. They were expending appropriations disbursable in local currency at the ratio of 2 to 1; half-and-half appropriations, or appropriations disbursable one-half in United States currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of 2 to 1; local currency appropriations disbursable at 2.10 to 1, and appropriations disbursable in local currency at 2.27 to 1. The difficulties arising under such a complicated system were almost insuperable, especially as all accounts were required to be stated to the War Department expressed in United States currency. The debit and credit differences to be adjusted were so numerous as greatly to impede the progress of the accounting work.

The foregoing is an extract from the report of the auditor for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902. Since that date there have been more changes in the ratio, still further complicating the accounts in the auditor's office. The system is intolerable. No auditor in the United States has ever had to deal with such problems and difficulties. It is impracticable for the auditor, thoroughly efficient as he is and with an able staff, to keep abreast of his work under such conditions.

The system of coinage which the Commission has proposed is in substance that which prevails over all India and throughout the Empire of Japan. Under the proposed system only such an amount of local currency would be issued as experience demonstrated, from time to time, was necessary. The United States gold dollar or the theoretical gold peso of the value of one-half dollar being the unit, all minor and subsidiary coins would be fractional parts of such peso. The actual peso in current use would be a silver one nearly the size of the Mexican dollar and such as the people are familiar with, and its parity would be maintained by the methods recommended in the Commission's last former report and by a restriction of the amount issued. In Japan the theoretical unit is a gold yen of the value of practically one-half dollar gold. The ordinary currency of the country, aside from paper money, is a silver yen and the fractional parts thereof, all redeemable in gold, and the value of a silver yen and the fractional parts is preserved at a uniform rate by issuing only such an amount thereof as the needs of the country demand, a system in principle precisely like that recommended for the Philippines.

In India the steady depreciation in the value of silver gradually depreciated the value of the rupee, the general coin of the country, until exchange had become involved in inextricable confusion and great loss resulted. In 1893 the government of India withdrew the power of individuals to claim free coinage of silver, reserving to the government the right to coin rupees, and issued notice that at the mints gold coin or bullion would be received in exchange for government rupees, and that at the treasuries sovereigns and half sovereigns would be received in payment of sums due to the government at the rate of 15 rupees to the sovereign, or 16 pence to the rupee. The immediate effect of this action was to cause the rate of exchange for rupees to run up from 14 pence to 16 pence, but in spite of this action the value of the rupee subsequently fell to 1244 pence, but subsequently, with the demands of increasing business and no increase in the coinage of rupees, the rate of exchange gradually rose, until in 1897 the rate of 16 pence was reached. From that time to the present the rate has remained at that point, with slight changes due to com-The present commercial value of the rupee, as bulmercial reasons. lion, is very much less than 16 pence, but it remains, and has remained for five years, at a fixed value sustaining a definite ratio to the pound sterling and subsidiary coins of Great Britain, because of the restriction of the coinage. From time to time, if the rupee became scarce and indicated a tendency to have a greater exchange value than 16 pence, additional amounts were coined by the government itself, care being always taken to issue no more than the necessities of commerce required at such time to maintain the parity of the coins. 7, 1899, the committee, appointed by the government of India, for the purpose of investigation and recommendation, reported unanimously in favor of a gold standard, and all but three recommended that the rate of 16 pence to the rupee be adopted; but on September 15, 1899, an act was passed making sovereigns and half sovereigns a legal tender at a fixed rate in rupees. While the gold circulation of India is not large relatively, the government has established a gold basis for the currency and maintained it without serious difficulty, and has maintained a fixed rate of exchange.

Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, professor of political economy in Cornell University, at Ithaca, N. Y., has during the past year made an extensive investigation into economic questions in the English and Dutch colonies in the Orient by personal examination and investigation of records, study of laws, ordinances, decrees, and interviews with men in authority and eminent in business transactions in those regions. His conclusions upon the subject of a fluctuating silver currency as compared with a fixed standard are stated at considerable length and clearness in a report which he has furnished to the Commission, a summary of which is as follows:

2. In countries where imported cooly labor is of great importance, and where such cooly labor is mostly Chinese, it is probable that better terms, i. e., a lower percentage of cost in wages, can be made by using the silver standard than by using the gold standard.

3. When silver is declining in value as compared with gold, a silver standard beyond doubt affords a stimulus to the production of goods for export, especially if the laborers employed are of the ignorant cooly type, the prices of whose purchases are largely customary. In the case of a newly developing country, where cooly labor is demanded, this stimulus may prove for some time, at least, of advantage, without disadvantage enough to offset.

4. The advantage to the producers of export goods are offset in part, doubtless. by losses of wage-earners, in part by losses of consumers of imported goods, but this influence on the distribution of wealth may quite conceivably for a considerable time be beneficial to the country as a whole.

5. On the other hand, conditions may be such that this change in the distribution of wealth may be a disadvantage, and each country needs to consider what the effect of the change in the distribution of wealth will be before settling its policy.

6. In the long run, it is probable that under any standard these changes in distribution will be gradually fixed, so that producers in a country with a gold standard will not continually be placed at any disadvantage regarding wages and other costs of production as compared with those in the silver-standard countries.

7. The silver standard under present circumstances, and probably for a long time to come, brings an element of uncertainty and speculation into business, which, speaking generally, is to be considered a decided disadvantage.

8. It is probable that in a country whose business is largely with gold-standard countries, the advantages of a fixed rate of exchange on a gold basis will more than offset the advantages which might come from a silver basis, unless the most important factor in connection with production is the introduction of cheap cooly labor. Even in the latter case, if there is a desire to develop especially the trade with gold countries, the fixed rate of exchange with gold is to be preferred.

The flow of capital for investment in a country is determined mainly by the outlook for profits. Unless the chances are very good an added element of speculation in business tends to check investment. Unless, therefore, conditions of labor or other special conditions are such as to more than offset the risks of a fluctuating rate of exchange, a fixed rate on a gold basis will encourage the investment of capital.

10. If the gold standard, together with a silver currency, is to be adopted in any of these oriental countries, the disadvantage which there may be in connection with it will be much less if the fixed rate of exchange be made as near as possible to the bullion rates, with the silver coin as a token, of light enough weight so that there will be slight danger of its being exported if a rise occurs in the value of silver bullion, and at the same time with the coin not too light as to afford undue temptation to counterfeiting. A coin 15 per cent or 20 per cent below the fixed exchange value would probably be light enough.

11. A permanent rate of exchange can be most easily maintained by a provision for the government to sell exchange at fixed rates between the home government and the dependency. Such rates should be high enough not to interfere with ordinary business, but low enough to prevent extortionate business rates even temporarily in the dependency itself. A reasonable gold reserve in the dependency itself, to be used when large quantities are needed for export, may well be kept in conjunction with the above plan.

12. Whatever the standard of value, the efficiency of the currency system is greatly increased by the use of paper. An elastic bank-note system, with notes current throughout the country, has proved best.

It will be observed that Professor Jenks finds it entirely feasible in such regions to maintain a fixed rate of exchange between gold and silver without the necessity of bringing gold, to a large extent, into circulation, and that the only regions where silver coin without a fixed value is advantageous are those wherein a great preponderance of the labor is cooly labor, mainly Chinese, largely ignorant, and such that they can be compelled to receive their pay in the depreciated currency, and thereby furnish a greater profit to their employers and to producers. In nearly all other respects a fixed currency is largely for the advantage of the inhabitants of those countries; but in the Philippine Islands cooly labor is not available. The Chineseexclusion act recently passed by Congress renders that class of labor unavailable here, so that all the evils of a fluctuating currency exist here, with none of the advantages, if they exist in any case.

It has been suggested that it would be unjust to deprive the Filipino people of the silver coin to which they have long been accustomed, and that an American free-silver Filipino coinage might be established that will give to them the same kind of coin that they have long been accustomed to, but of much better workmanship, which coin, it is said, will ultimately drive out the ruder Mexican coin. But it would manifestly be no hardship upon the Filipino people to deprive them of a fluctuating currency from which they all, without exception, experience a hardship. We do not know any man or class of men, of any nationality or rank, in these islands, whowish for a continuance either of the present fluctuating silver coin, or of an American fluctuating silver coin, with the possible exception of the money changers, who, of course, make a profit from every fluctuation of value, and of a very few employers of laborers who find it to their advantage to pay their laborers in a cheaper currency.

It surely is no hardship to deprive the people of a kind of currency that they do not wish for and that is ruinous to them, and to substitute therefor one similar in appearance to that to which they have long been accustomed and which has a fixed and definite value. It is believed that these are the sentiments not only of the Commission, but of the entire body of the people who have given this subject any thought, of every nationality in the islands—native, American, and foreign. If it be true that such a system of coinage would operate to the material loss or to the permanent detriment of the people of these islands, it is confidently believed that the Congress of the United States will not be willing to impose upon this country a financial system which will operate to retard or ruin enterprise and commercial prosperity.

To summarize, it may be stated that the evils of the existing system are:

1. The fluctuating currency hampers business enterprises and renders investments therein uncertain and dangerous.

2. It raises the rate of interest decidedly, because the lender must charge a rate of interest, where the loan is made in local currency and to be repaid in local currency, sufficient to cover the possible and probable loss he may sustain in his principal when it is returned in the same currency with a lower value therefor.

3. It demoralizes the whole civil service of the government, and creates intense dissatisfaction on the part of all civil employees.

4. It results in enormous losses to the insular treasury.5. It opens great doors for fraud on the part of receiving and disbursing officers of the government.

6. It renders accurate accounting exceedingly difficult and laborious and well-nigh impossible.

7 It continues a system that is odious to the people and to the

7. It continues a system that is odious to the people and to the business men of these islands.

Every one of these evils can be remedied by the scheme heretofore recommended by the Commission. It is very respectfully submitted that the people of these islands are entitled to as good a money and as stable a currency as the people of the United States enjoy, and that it would be an unjust discrimination against the people here to continue or perpetuate in any form a system of inferior currency which they do not wish for.

In the act of Congress, entitled "An act temporarily to provide for the administration of the civil government in the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," passed July 1, 1902, provision is made authorizing the coinage of subsidiary and minor coins for use in the Philippine Islands. Inasmuch as no standard unit of which such coins shall be a fractional part is provided by Congress, it has been deemed impracticable by the Commission to proceed with such coinage. A portion of section 78 of the act above referred to provides that "the subsidiary silver coins authorized by this section shall be legal tender in said islands to the amount of ten dollars," and a portion of section 79 provides that "such minor coins shall be legal tender in said islands for amounts not exceeding one dollar."

It is not apparent as to whether the coins therein named are to be made legal tender for dollars payable in local currency, such as at present exist, or in a new local currency such as the Commission have recommended, or in money of the United States, inasmuch as no unit of value is established by the act. It is apparent that the subsidiary and minor coins referred to are to be fractional parts of some unit. Without knowing of what unit they are fractional parts, it would be very difficult to provide for their circulation. If such coins should be immediately coined and issued, and a subsequent act of Congress should make the unit to be the United States-Filipino peso of 50 cents gold value, as recommended by the Commission, the proposed coins would have more than 20 per cent greater value than if legislation by Congress should cause them to be only fractional parts of a free silver peso coined under free-coinage principles, or of the Mexican peso now in circulation in the islands. With such uncertainty as to the status of the subsidiary and minor coins, it would be difficult to maintain them in general circulation; the banks would decline to pay them out, and would retain them as fast as they would come into their possession, in view of the fact that, if the free-coinage system or the continuance of the Mexican system should ultimately prevail, they would lose nothing by retaining them in their vaults, and that, if the system heretofore recommended by the Commission should be adopted, these coins would thereby have fixed and definite values, namely, as fractional parts of a peso worth 50 cents, and the banks would thus have made a profit of more than 20 per cent in the value of the coins so hoarded by the simple process of retaining them from circulation until the fixed unit of value should have been adopted. It was learned that the banks were taking this view of the situation and had indicated a willingness to take a large amount of the new subsidiary and minor coins should they be issued, which manifestly they could well afford to do under such circumstances. In view of all these facts, on the 30th day of September, 1902, the Commission resolved:

That no action should be taken for the coinage of the minor and subsidiary coins referred to until a unit of value shall have been fixed by act of Congress or otherwise, the legislation of Congress referred to being, in the opinion of the Commission, permissive and not mandatory.

Before leaving this subject it should be remarked that under the operation of the influences above stated the insular revenues from October or November, 1901, down to July 1, 1902, were nearly all paid in local currency, while many of the obligations of the government had to be met in gold. The consequence was that the supply of gold in the insular treasury became gradually depleted until it had less than $1,000,000 of gold, or money of the United States, in its vaults. By changing the ratio as above stated, after the passage of the act of Congress authorizing such changes to be made, as often as every ten days, the ratio has been kept such that it was not-longer to the special advantage of parties making payments to make them wholly in local currency, and by continuing to make the government disbursements mainly in local currency the amount of money of the United States in the treasury on the 4th day of October, 1902, was $2,634,535.185.

BANKS AND BANKING.

In the last report of the Commission, under date October 15, 1901, the status of the banks then existing in the islands and of the paper currency in circulation was detailed. There having been no additional legislation by Congress authorizing the establishment of banks in the Philippine Islands, with power to issue bank notes, no action in that direction has been taken by the Commission. above referred to contains the recommendations of the Commission in regard to the establishment of a banking system for the islands. Those recommendations I renew, calling special attention to the burden that is now imposed upon commerce by the absence of a sufficient paper currency. Paper money is used but very little in the ordinary operations of commerce, because it is not available. mechanical difficulties in the way of using the present bulky coins are The counting of money imposes great burdens upon all very great. receiving and disbursing officers and upon the treasury. The handling of large sums involves very considerable expense, and is a serious handicap upon business and governmental transactions. It is urgently recommended that the system of banking which was before recommended be enacted into legislation by the Congress of the United States, or that another system, such as shall commend itself to the judgment of that body, be provided, or that legislation be enacted specifically authorizing the Commission to establish such a system, with a right to authorize the issue of bank notes.

Since the date of the last report of the Commission two powerful American banking institutions have opened offices for a general banking business in the Philippine Islands—the International Banking Corporation, of Connecticut, and Guaranty Trust Company, of New York.

Both of these institutions have been made authorized depositories for public funds of the United States and of the government of the Philippine Islands in the archipelago. They have introduced a new element of competition, so that exchange, in the large sense, and exchange of currencies in a smaller sense, can be had at a more reasonable rate than formerly prevailed. The funds belonging to the insular government have been so distributed that each of the authorized depositories has about the same amount as the other, and in the insular treasury something over one and a half million in local currency and something over $100,000 in money of the United States are now stored in the vaults.

Two small American banks have been started in the city of Manila during the past year, with inadequate capital and an uncertain status as to the legal capacity to transact a banking business. One of them has already been closed, except as to its savings department, and the other has been subjected to frequent examinations, and is now making strenuous efforts to collect some doubtful notes which it has received for loans. Its business is small. The opinion is still entertained that banks with small capital have little field for usefulness in these islands.

GENERAL CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

The accounts of the treasury of the Philippine Archipelago have been well kept, and the office has been well administered. All receipts and disbursements have been thoroughly audited by the auditor of the Philippine Archipelago. Both the treasurer and the auditor are to be commended for their efficiency and fidelity.

The amount in the treasury at the beginning of the fiscal year July 1, 1901, stated in money of the United States, local currency being reduced to money of the United States at the ratio of 2 to 1, was $6,222,912.78. The amount in the treasury at the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1902, local currency being reduced to money of the United States at the ratio then prevailing, $1 of money of the United States to 2.27 local currency, was $5,995,006.49\frac{1}{2}.

The sum available for appropriation on July 1, 1901, was $3,919,420, money of the United States, local currency being reduced to money of the United States on the basis of 2 to 1, exclusive of certain Spanish and insurgent seized funds and special deposits.

The sum available for appropriations on June 30, 1902, was $3,999,426.47, money of the United States, local currency being reduced to money of the United States on the basis of 2.27 to 1.

The total receipts and disbursements of the insular government during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, were as follows:

Of the total receipts, $8,550,758.49 came from customs duties. The general government, in fact, is supported mainly from that source. The excess of receipts over disbursements arises from the fact that the fiscal year 1902 includes all that period from July 1 to December 31, 1901, when many of the bureaus had not been organized, and many of the disbursements that subsequently became necessary were not required.

During the second half of the fiscal year 1902 the disbursements exceeded the receipts. During that period the total receipts were $6,777,339.85, of which $1,310,191.74 were repayments from former appropriations not fully disbursed; and refundable duties to the amount of $64,498.13, making a total deduction of $1,374,689.87; leaving a net revenue for the period of $5,402,649.98, United States currency. Disbursements, $6,114,932.34, leaving an apparent deficiency of $712,282.36.

Many of the disbursements during the second half of the fiscal year 1902 were in the nature of permanent investments, as for the purchase of vessels for the bureau of coast guard and transportation, the completion of payments for the construction of the insular cold storage and ice plant, purchase of equipment and arms for the insular constabulary, the harbor improvement of the port of Manila, construction of the Benguet road, building and equipping printing plant, and other works of a general character. The organization, equipment, and maintenance of the insular constabulary was a very large expense mainly during the latter part of the fiscal year. The cholera epidemic has diminished the revenues by decreasing the imports and disturbing the public conditions, and has increased expenditures by nearly $500,000, money of the United States, in the attempt to prevent the spread of the pestilence.

The details of the sources from which all receipts came and the purposes for which all expenditures have been incurred are shown in the "Combined statement of the receipts and disbursements for the Philippine Archipelago for the fiscal year 1902," prepared by the auditor, hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit IV."

It is believed that the insular revenues for the fiscal year 1903 would be adequate to meet all disbursements for the purposes of administration and for the expenditure of considerable sums for improvements and extraordinary expenses were it not for the great depreciation that has existed in the value of the silver coin held by the treasury as above stated. This depreciation will cause a deficit which must be met from the surplus heretofore accumulated in the treasury. The probable amount of the deficit will be apparent from the budget, as hereinafter stated. The available assets will be to some extent increased by the action of Congress in dedicating to insular purposes the Spanish seized funds and seized insurgent funds that have been kept as special funds in the treasury heretofore.

The available assets, however, will not be increased to any appreciable extent by the provisions that customs duties collected in the United States on imports from the Philippine Islands shall be returned to the insular treasury. Experience has already demonstrated that the insular treasury wlll receive very little benefit from that provision of law. The rates now imposed by law upon imports into the United States from the Philippine Islands are still practically prohibitive and afford no encouragement to the industries of these islands.

SEIZED FUNDS AND SPECIAL DEPOSITS.

Acting under the authority of the act of Congress last referred to, the insular treasurer, the auditor, and the assistant executive secretary have been appointed a committee to furnish a complete list of the Spanish seized funds, and funds seized from insurgents, and special deposits in the treasury, and to recommend a scheme for converting the same into cash in the insular treasury, subject to such claims as may be established against the funds. The committee has not yet made its report, but it is expected that the report will soon be forthcoming and suitable legislation will be enacted upon the subject.

INSULAR BUDGET.

It is impracticable to make estimates for the fiscal year 1903 that will be entirely accurate, but to that end a most careful investigation has been made of the necessary operating expenses of every department and bureau in the islands and of the extraordinary expenses that are liable to be incurred, the extraordinary expenses being mainly for new equipment and permanent improvements, and the expense incident to taking the census required by the act of Congress of July 1, 1902.

For the first quarter of the fiscal year 1903, ending September 30, 1902, the total appropriations have been $2,646,994.83, of which $2,074,820.94 were for current expenses, and $572,173.89 were for extraordinary expenses. The appropriations for the city of Manila are included in this statement, all payments on account of the city of Manila being made from the insular treasury.

Using as a basis these data, as well as the actual disbursements for the latter portion of the fiscal year 1902, when substantially all the bureaus had been organized, and making a suitable allowance for extraordinary expenses that are now foreseen for the fiscal year 1903, the estimate is that the total expenditures required will be $11,570,637.22, of which $8,583,209.38 are for current expenses and $2,987,427.84 are for extraordinary expenses. All disbursements for the city of Manila are included in this estimate.

Included in the estimate for extraordinary expenses for the fiscal year 1903 are $75,000 for the suppression of epidemic diseases and pests, and $50,000 for expenses in connection with the establishment of a leper colony, $31,149.60 for apparatus and books for a new laboratory building; $875,612.67 for the construction of vessels for the coast guard and transportation, construction of light-houses and purchase of lanterns; $362,056.32 for the construction and maintenance of public buildings, including the new government laboratory; $28,406 for the construction of wharves at Lligan, Siassi, Jolo, and Parang-Parang; $500,000 for harbor improvements at the port of Manila; $125,000 for the Philippine exhibit at the Louisana Purchase Exposition, at St. Louis; $150,000 for the construction of a road into Benguet Province; $54,706 for the purchase of a rock crusher, alteration of markets, completion of city pound, improvement and widening of the streets of Manila; $56,182.25 for the installation of the pail system of sanitation in the city of Manila; $561,853 for taking the census, and $100,000 for improvement of the harbor of Cebu.

The revenues of the insular government from all sources, aside from refunds, during the first quarter of the fiscal year 1903, ending September 30, 1902, including the city of Manila, amounts to $3,272,283.52. Using as a basis the revenues last stated and the amount collected during the latter portion of the fiscal year 1902 it is estimated that the revenues as the revenues are stated and the set of the fiscal year 1902 it is estimated.

nues for the fiscal year 1903 will be as follows:

From all departments of the insular government proper $9,389,858.36 From the city of Manila 1,407,926.78 Showing an apparent deficit of $772,852.08.

It is anticipated that some revenue will accrue from the bureau of agriculture during the fiscal year 1903, but no estimate of such receipts has been included in the above computation, because of the uncertainty of results, nor are the expenses or revenues of the forestry bureau included in the estimate, because under a recent law enacted by the Commission the revenues of the forestry bureau will be returned to the provinces from which they are collected after deducting the expenses of collection. Should it be determined that the revenues accruing from that source should go into the insular treasury, and the expenses of collection be charged to the insular government, the expenses for the fiscal year 1903 should be increased by $106,568 and the revenue by, approximately, $300,000.

The receipts from the city of Manila for the fiscal year 1903 will probably be more than is above estimated.

In the statement of revenues collected the refundable export duties collected in Manila on exports to the United States are not included, nor in the estimate of revenues is anything included for the customs receipts for Philippine goods imported into the United States, accurate data for this latter sum being not available and the amount thereof being inconsiderable according to such information as has been received.

Taking everything into consideration, it is probable that at the end of the fiscal year 1903 there will be in the treasury available for appropriation approximately the sum of $3,226,574.39, aside from seized funds and special deposits now in the treasury and from the sum of $208,000 received from the Navy Department for gunboats purchased out of insular funds and taken over by the United States Navy, being $772,852.08 less than the sum available for appropriation at the end of the fiscal year 1902.

All sums are stated in money of the United States. The details of the purposes for which the expenditures for the fiscal year 1903 will be made and the sources of revenue from which they will be met are contained in the tabulation hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit VI."

BUDGET OF THE CITY OF MANILA.

The charter of the city of Manila took effect on the 7th day of August, 1901, and the data of its financial condition for the fiscal year 1902 cover the period from August 7, 1901, to June 30, 1902, and show the actual receipts and disbursements down to June 11, 1902, and the estimated receipts and disbursements from June 11 to June They appear in the report hereto annexed, which has been prepared by the municipal board, and is marked "Exhibit VII." The aggregate of expenses during that period was $1,603,893, in money of the United States; and the receipts deposited by collecting officers during the same period were $992,359.05 down to June 10, 1902. estimated deposits by collecting officers from June 10 to June 30, 1902, Thirty per cent of the expenses of the city of Manila were $69,139.80. are, by law, borne by the insular government, and that 30 per cent amounts to $481,167.90. There is, therefore, an overdraft which the municipal government has made upon the insular treasury of $61,226.25, which will be easily taken care of from the proceeds of collections for the fiscal year 1902. The estimate of collections from all sources of revenue for the fiscal year 1903 is $1,874,280, and of ordinary expenses for the fiscal year 1903, $1,556,666; of extraordinary expenses, $300,000, making a total of $1,856,666; from which it appears that the income will be sufficient to meet the ordinary and extraordinary expenses for the fiscal year 1903 now contemplated, without reference to the contribution thereto from the insular treasury.

The exhibits marked respectively VIII and IX contain inventories of lands, buildings, and other real property belonging to the city of Manila on the 30th day of June, 1902, and of personal property belonging to the city at the same date.

It will be observed that the estimates for receipts and disbursements for the fiscal year 1903, as shown by Exhibit VII, prepared by the municipal board, differ from the estimates of the same receipts and disbursements contained in Exhibit VI, the municipal board estimating their receipts for the fiscal year 1903 at a larger sum than that stated in Exhibit VI, and their expenditures at a less sum. The appropriations that have already been made for the city of Manila for the first two quarters of the fiscal year 1903 indicate that the expenditures for the city will be larger for the whole year than the municipal board have estimated, and it is doubtful if the revenues will be as large as the board had estimated. Should the revenues of the city prove as large as the board have estimated, and the disbursements not exceed their estimates, then the deficit in the insular budget will be diminished accordingly. It has not been deemed advisable for the purpose of this report to change the estimates contained in Exhibit VI.

CUSTOMS TARIFF.

As stated in the last former report of the Philippine Commission to the Secretary of War, the new customs tariff was enacted on the 17th day of September, 1901, and took effect on the 15th day of November, 1901, with the proviso that during the first sixty days after the law became effective importers of goods en route to Manila might elect to pay under the new tariff or the old. The large reductions that were made in the duties imposed upon the necessaries of life, and the important free entry list upon articles imperatively needed in the islands operated to reduce the income materially. was hoped that the increased consumption which would thereby be made feasible by reason of the lower price of imported commodities might make the revenues as great as under the former tariff, or greater, and such may be the result ultimately. But the hoped for The fluctuations in curreduction in retail prices has not resulted. rency have been made excuses for constant increases in prices by retail dealers, so that a very large proportion of imported commodities are now sold throughout the islands at a higher price than one year ago, computed in United States currency values. currency shall be established it may be anticipated that competition will correct the evil of high prices after a time, although the reduction of duties in Cuba and Porto Rico seemed for a long time to produce little effect upon ordinary retail prices. The reduction of duties by the Philippine tariff revision law of 1901 was not less than 25 per cent, and the accruing revenues have been probably 25 per cent less than they would have been under the former tariff.

One result of the reduction of the tariff upon certain commodities has apparently been to increase the importation thereof, although other causes have operated to influence the increased importation.

The reduction of duty upon wheat was from 47 cents per 100 kilos to 25 cents per 100 kilos, but practically no wheat was imported under either schedule. The reduction on wheat flour was from $1.63 per 10.0 kilos to 40 cents per 100 kilos. The importation of flour has shown an increase during the past year from 114,000 to 151,000 barrels. former duty upon forage, hay, and bran was 14 cents per. 100 kilos, and the present duty is 5 cents per 100 kilos, and the importations have increased from 700 to 3,000 tons. The former duty on canned fruits was 15 cents per kilo, and the present duty is from 2 cents to 4 conts per kilo, and the importations have increased from 42,000 to 700,000 Former duty upon canned meats was 15 cents per kilo, and the present duty is from 5 cents to 20 cents per kilo, most of the goods going under the lower schedule. There has been an increase in the importation of canned meats from about 6,000 to 165,000 pounds. former duty on hams was $9.13 per 100 kilos, and the present duty is $3 per 100 kilos, and the importations thereof have increased from 692,000 to 1,800,000 pounds. The former duty on lard was $9.13 per 100 kilos, and the present duty is $1.60 per 100 kilos. The importations of this article have increased from 1,200,000 to 2,000,000 pounds. The former duty on canned salmon was 15 cents per kilo, and the present duty is 3½ cents per kilo, and the importations have increased from about 8,000 to 1,500,000 pounds. The former duty on unhusked rice was 59 cents and husked rice 63 cents per 100 kilos, while the present duties are 40 cents and 50 cents per 100 kilos respectively. The total amount of rice imported has increased from 194,500,000 to 340,000,000 pounds. This last increase is largely owing to the diminished production of rice in the islands, caused by the disasters of war, and by the death from rinderpest of animals essential to the cultivation of rice.

Attention is invited to the supplemental report of the collector of customs for the Philippine Archipelago upon this subject, which is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit X."

There has been nothing developed by the working of the new tariff law to indicate that on the whole, and with a view to final results, the tariff adopted was not such as ought to have been adopted. Individual paragraphs appear to have imposed too high or too low a duty, but in general the theories upon which the tariff was constructed seem now to have been wise and for the best interest of the islands.

On February 6, 1902, the Commission passed act No. 355, entitled "An act to constitute the customs service of the Philippine Archipelago and to provide for the administration thereof," with a short title of "The Philippine customs administrative act." The portion of the act which provides for a court of customs appeals has already been referred to and need not be here further discussed. The act has made an effective organization of the customs service of the islands possible, and under it practically all the revenue warranted by law has been collected. It is based largely upon the principles of the customs administration laws of the United States.

On March 3, 1902, the Commission passed act No. 367, to reorganize the personnel of the Philippine customs service and to give thereby uniformity to classification, grades, and qualifications of customs officials and employees.

The facilities at the Manila custom-house for the transaction of efficient clerical work and for the rapid receipt and discharge of imported merchandise are inadequate. The sum of $75,000 has been provided for extension of the present custom-house, and the work has already been entered upon.

There has been very great complaint in regard to the expense of bringing imported merchandise from steamers in the harbor to the custom-house and wharves and of landing them and placing them in the proper warehouses, and of the delay in such operations, owing to the insufficient character of the lightering and landing facilities and the method of carrying on that business, and from sorting the cargo on board the incoming steamers in such way that each owner might receive his own merchandise in his own casco or lighter, or cascos and lighters engaged by him for that purpose. Steamers have been subjected to great demurrage by the delay incident to that process and to the insufficient landing facilities at the custom-house wharves. draft of a law has been prepared providing for an official lighterman who should be awarded, after competitive bidding, the exclusive right of landing all imported merchandise arriving from foreign ports, the operations to be all under the direction of the collector of customs. Public hearings have been held upon the proposed bill and much opposition to it has been manifested on the part of agents of steamship lines arriving here, and owners of cascos, lighters, lorchas, and barges heretofore engaged in that business. The bill is now under consideration by the Commission and has received no final action. The discussion, however, has developed several points in which improvement can be made, and no doubt increased and much better facilities will be secured by reason of such legislation as will be enacted.

The special report of the collector of customs for the Philippine Archipelago of the operations of the Philippine customs service from June 1, 1901, to September 1, 1902, is hereto annexed and marked

"Exhibit XI."

During that period a large number of coastwise ports have been opened and equipment and supplies for the open ports have been purchased, many permanent repairs have been made, and Army officers acting as customs officers have been replaced by civil employees mainly, and a small revenue-cutter service has been purchased, equipped, and put into operation.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, there was imported into Manila foreign merchandise to the value of about $28,500,000, upon which the duties collected amounted to about $6,867,000, the average ad valorem rate under the foreign tariff being slightly over 24 per cent. During the fiscal year 1902 foreign goods were imported to the value of over $36,500,000, upon which the duties collected amounted to approximately $6,289,000, with an average ad valorem rate under the present tariff of something less than 18 per cent.

The pro rata cost of collecting customs revenue in the Philippine Islands is less than it is in the United States. At Manila, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, the cost of collecting $1 of customs revenue was $0.0477, including the cost of customs launches, maintenance of the immigration division, cost of supplies, janitor's service, and night watchman, fuel, lights, water, repairs, and preservation of public buildings, compensation for detectives and informers. If these items were deducted from the total expenditures at the port of Manila for the fiscal year 1902, as many of them are deducted in the statistics of the United States, the actual cost of collecting $1 would be $0.0345—materially less than the cost of collecting at the port of San Francisco or New Orleans, and practically the same as at the larger port of Boston.

In connection with this statement of comparative expenses it should be remarked that the customs duties in the Philippine Islands are practically one-half of what the average customs duties are at ports of the United States, so that double the amount of business has to be transacted here to collect the same amount of revenues, which makes the showing still more favorable in behalf of economy of the customs administration in the Philippine Islands. These results have been secured in face of the fact that it has been difficult to secure competent and experienced employees.

During the year ending June 30, 1902, 10,158 Chinese have arrived at the port of Manila and 11,432 have departed with return certificates. It is believed that few evasions of the Chinese-exclusion act have occurred.

Attention is invited to the summary, attached to the report of the collector of customs, of imports by countries, including the value of and duties thereon, as well as a similar statement relating to exports.

The collector of customs for the Philippine Archipelago has been diligent and efficient in the performance of his responsible duties.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

At the beginning of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, the collector of internal revenue for the islands was, through the proper agents, collecting revenue in all parts of the archipelago, except in provinces where civil government had been established, in which provinces the revenue was being collected by provincial treasurers in accordance with law.

On July 1, 1901, the bureau of internal revenue had in its service 46 collectors, most of whom were army or marine officers detailed for this service, and 85 clerks employed in 45 offices. The military or naval officers detailed as collectors of internal revenue had not been relieved from their military or naval duties, and the details were frequently changed, so that the collection of such taxes was partial and irregular.

On the 7th of August, 1901, the act incorporating the city of Manila took effect, and the city assessor and collector for Manila was made collector of internal revenue for the archipelago, his jurisdiction extending over the city of Manila and over all those portions of the islands not organized into provincial governments. As provincial governments were, from time to time, established, and the duties of internal-revenue collectors thereafter in such provinces appertained to the provincial treasurers, the work of the collector of internal revenue gradually diminished until, on June 30, 1902, he had supervision over the following parts of the archipelago only: Laguna Province. island of Samar, island of Mindanao (except the provinces of Surigao and Misamis), island of Mindoro, the whole of the Jolo archipelago, including the islands of Basilan and Siassi and the Tawi-Tawi Islands, with 15 collectors, 9 of whom were army or marine officers and 2 were customs officers performing the duties of collectors of internal revenue, with a force of 15 clerks. Since that date the jurisdiction of the internal-revenue collector has ceased in Laguna Province, the island of Samar and the island of Mindoro.

Aside from the city of Manila, therefore, the receipts from internal revenue have been very small, owing to the limited area from which such receipts are collected and come to the insular treasury, and the percentage of expenses for the entire collection was necessarily large, amounting to 9.33 per cent.

The internal-revenue stamps handled by the department during the fiscal year 1902 are embraced in the following statement:

| On hand July 1, 1901 Received from printers Received from other offices | 43, 500.00  |              |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|--------------|
| Total Sold in Manila. Transferred to other offices                      | 12, 594, 35 | -            |
| Total                                                                   |             | 450, 093, 40 |

There were sold in Manila during the period from July 1 to August 7, 1901, when the Manila charter took effect, internal-revenue stamps amounting to $6,297.17\frac{1}{2}$ United States currency.

The total internal-revenue collections for the city of Manila during the month of July, 1902, and six days in August, show an increase of 18.77 per cent over the collections for a similar period of the fiscal year 1901, caused by an increase in business in the city.

The industrial taxes collected for this period in the city of Manila amounted to $54,164.61 United States currency, an increase of 20.4 per cent over the amount collected during a similar period of the fiscal year 1901.

The total receipts of internal revenue collected for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, amounted to $201,380.35 United States currency, such receipts of the city of Manila only being included from July 1 to August 7, 1901, and for the provinces only during such portion of that year as the collector of internal revenue, in distinction from the provincial treasurers, had jurisdiction thereof.

A new internal-revenue law is in course of preparation, based in a general way upon the system of internal revenue prevailing in the United States, from which it is believed there can be secured a large increase in the revenues available for the insular government.

In view of the deficit for the fiscal year 1903 in the insular treasury it is believed that additional sources of revenue must be sought. can not be found in customs receipts, which now bear the great burden of nearly the whole of the expenses of the insular government, nor is it deemed advisable to devote any portion of the land tax to the maintenance of the insular government. That tax has now, and necessarily invites, opposition, and can only be made popular by dedicating all its proceeds to local use in the locality where the taxes are col-A cedula or personal registration tax has long been in force in the islands, and the people are accustomed to that and pay it with grumbling, but it is paid far more willingly when the proceeds are devoted to municipal and provincial uses and not to the insular gov-Such is the system now in operation by law, and it is believed to be unwise to change it at present. Some revenue will doubtless hereafter accrue from the sale of government lands, and from forestry products, which have heretofore been devoted to municipal and provincial uses.

The revenues that accrue from fines and costs imposed by the courts, and the government cold-storage and ice plant, and from miscellaneous sources can not be expected to increase to any marked extent in the immediate future. But a reasonable system of internal-revenue taxes by which large industries, corporations, and the manufacturers of liquors, tobaccos, and cigars contribute a reasonable sum for the protection which they receive from the government, and for the franchises that are secured to them, ought to provide a material addition to the available resources and to prevent further deficits.

The report of the internal-revenue collector for the fiscal year 1902 is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit XII."

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE PROVINCES AND MUNICIPALITIES.

It is impossible to give at this time an accurate view of the financial condition of the various provinces and municipalities. The report of the auditor, hereto annexed, contains the details so far as available. Many of the provinces were not organized until after the commencement of the fiscal year 1902, so that the reports as to such provinces are only for fractional parts of the year. The provinces of Samar, Laguna, Paragua, and Lepanto-Bontoc were organized just at the close of the year or immediately after is close. The statistics do not include all the municipal taxes, because there are certain minor license taxes paid directly to the municipal treasuries which do not appear in the statements of the provincial treasurers. Otherwise the accounts of the several provincial treasurers contain the total receipts and disbursements both from taxes levied for the benefit of the provinces and those levied for the benefit of the municipalities. Some taxes are levied for the joint benefit of the municipalities and the provinces in accordance with provisions of law.

The following summary will show the general financial condition of the provincial and municipal governments:

Province of Abra.—Organized August 19, 1901; total receipts, $11,321.02; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $1,020.67. This is a province of limited resources.

Albay.—Organized April 26, 1901; total receipts, $111,683.64, including $2,500 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $22,061.60. This is a hemp-producing province, and therefore in good financial condition.

Ambos Camarines.—Organized April 27, 1901; total receipts, $106,-682.52, including $2,500 on hand June 30, 1901, and $25,000 borrowed from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $34,220.84.

This province is in fair financial condition.

Antique.—Organized April 13, 1901; total receipts, $28,635.04, including $2,500 on hand June 30, 1901; balance on hand May 31, 1902, $2,325.04. The statistics from May 31 to June 30, 1902, were not available at the time of preparation of the auditor's report. This province is one of limited resources and has been badly affected by locusts and rinderpest.

Bataan.—Organized March 2, 1901; total receipts, $37,435.20, including balance on hand June 30, 1901, $1,507.80; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $5,245.86. This is a small province, but one able to maintain itself.

Batangas.—Organized May 2, 1901; total receipts, $58,560.80, including $2,505 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $11,876.93. This province was formerly a very rich one, but it has been greatly devastated by war, and during the whole of the fiscal year 1902 was under military government, and active war was prevailing for a considerable portion of the time. It is thought that this province will be entirely self-sustaining hereafter, possibly needing temporary loans from the insular treasury.

Benguet.—Organized November 23, 1900; total receipts, $7,671.40; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $131.65. This province is not organized under the "Provincial government act," but under a special act, and the government thereof is supported almost wholly from appropriations from the insular treasury. The inhabitants are mainly Igorrotes and are not at present able to contribute largely to the support of the provincial government.

Bohol.—Organized April 20, 1901; total receipts, $50.801.75, including a loan from the insular treasury of $2,500; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $22,115.80. This province was under a military government for a considerable portion of the fiscal year, but it is entirely able to support itself hereafter.

Bulacan.—Organized February 27, 1901; total receipts, $83,385.20, including $2,052.58 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $15,961.73. This province will be self-supporting.

Cagayan.—Organized September 1, 1901; total receipts, $69,102.99; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $33,864.68. This province is one of large natural resources and will be self-sustaining.

Capiz.—Organized April 13, 1901; total receipts, $70,375.19, including balance on hand June 30, 1901, $2,500, and a loan from the insular treasury of $25,000; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $14,766.78. This province has been greatly afflicted by locusts and rinderpest, and ladronism caused by poverty. It is believed, however, that the province will not need further aid from the insular treasury.

Cavite.—Organized June 11, 1901; total receipts, $64,482.24, including $2,500 loaned from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $9,166.97. The progress of this province has been interfered with to a considerable extent by ladronism, but it is believed that the province will be self-sustaining.

Cebu.—Organized April 18, 1901; total receipts, $132,457.45, including $2,500 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $30,755.93. The province was under military government during a great portion of the fiscal year, but has been self-sustaining and will undoubtedly be so permanently.

Ilocos Norte.—Organized September 1, 1901; total receipts, $55,604.54, including $2,500 loaned from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $12,184.06. This province will be self-supporting.

Ilocos Sur.—Organized September 1, 1901; total receipts, $69,355.44, including loan of $2,500 from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $14,054.74. This province will be self-sustaining.

Iloilo.—Organized April 11, 1901; total receipts, $202,290.07, including loan from the insular treasury of $25,000; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $17,978.91. This province will be self-sustaining, but has suffered seriously from ladrones during the past year. The loan from the insular treasury was made to enable the province to combat cholera and to aid the poorer municipalities by loans.

Isabela.—Organized September 10, 1901; total receipts, $42,647.44, including $2,500 loaned from the insular treasury; balance on hand

Digitized by Google

June 30, 1902, $6,495.84. This province has large natural resources and will be self-sustaining.

Leyte.—Organized April 22, 1901; total receipts, $122,815.36, including $90 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $23,196.06. This is a hemp-producing province. It was disturbed during the fiscal year largely by reason of the war in the adjacent province of Samar. The province is a rich one and will be undoubtedly self-sustaining.

Marinduque.—Organized May 1, 1901; total receipts, $23,380.18, including balance on hand June 30, 1901, of $2,500; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $3,372.16. This is a small province, to which the island of Mindoro has recently been added. The province will probably be self-sustaining, as it has great natural resources.

Masbate.—Organized March 18, 1901; total receipts, $29,379.34, including balance on hand June 30, 1901, $2,990.89; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $4,934.67. This province is one that has a small population, and it has had its principal industry (cattle raising) nearly destroyed by rinderpest. It is doubtful whether the province can continue to maintain itself financially, unless the income from its forestry products is all returned to it. Its resources and forestry products are large and capacity for cattle producing is great.

Misamis.—Organized May 15, 1901; total receipts, $39,901.96, including $2,500 borrowed from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $8,060.89. This province is not a rich one, but will be self-sustaining.

Nueva Ecija.—Organized June 11, 1901; total receipts, $44,386.11, including $2,000 borrowed from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $2,584.96. The loan from the insular treasury has been repaid. This province should be self-sustaining.

Nueva Vizcaya.—Organized January 28, 1902; total receipts, $3,020.48; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $2,193.82. This province is not organized under the general "Provincial government act," but under a special act of a paternal character. The inhabitants are mainly non-Christian people, and the government must for the present be supported from the insular treasury.

Occidental Negros.—Organized April 20, 1901; total receipts $143,626.93, including $21,931.60 received from the former government of the island of Negros under the provisions of act No. 119; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $47,071.09. This is a sugar-producing province and will be abundantly able to support itself. The financial affairs of the old government of both Occidental and Oriental Negros has been adjusted during the fiscal year.

Oriental Negros.—Organized May 1, 1901; total receipts $72,175.03, including balance on hand June 30, 1901, of $3,356.16; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $16,966.80. This province will be self-sustaining.

Pampanga.—Organized February 13, 1901; total receipts $139,188.01, including $3,649.42 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $57,952.69. This province is in good financial condition and will be self-sustaining.

Pangasinan.—Organized February 18, 1901; total receipts $189,-448.95, including $11,709.02 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $26,259.07. This is a large province and abundantly able to support itself.

Rizal.—Organized June 11, 1901; total receipts $53,114.49, including $2,500 loaned from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $12,318 08. This province will be self-sustaining.

Romblon.—Organized March 16, 1901; total receipts $22,560.84, including $71.88 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $2,708.30. This is a small province, but probably will be able to maintain itself.

Sorsogon.—Organized April 30, 1901; total receipts $107,532.78, including $2,500 loaned from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $24,172.69. This is a hemp-producing province, and will be able to take care of itself financially.

Surigao.—Organized May 15, 1901; total receipts $32,386.30, including $2,000 borrowed from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $8,618.55. This province is not a rich one, but will probably be able to sustain itself.

Tarlac.—Organized February 18, 1901; total receipts $94,769.97, including $25.78 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $18,162.21. This province will be self-sustaining.

Tayabas.—Organized March 12, 1901; total receipts $84,096.17, including $2,935.49 on hand June 30, 1901; balance in treasury June 30, 1902, $22,588.36. This province was disturbed during a portion of the year by the hostilities in the adjacent province of Batangas, but will be abundantly able to sustain itself.

Union.—Organized August 15, 1901; total receipts $66,714.81, including $2,500 borrowed from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $5,556.99. This province will be self-sustaining.

Zambales.—Organized August 28, 1901; total receipts $33,940.24, including a loan of $2,500 from the insular treasury; balance on hand June 30, 1902, $10,466.74. This province is one of limited resources, but will probably be able to sustain itself.

The total receipts of the provincial treasuries during the fiscal year aggregate $2,517,265.13, including municipal funds collected by provincial treasuries, and the balance on hand June 30, 1902, in the several treasuries amount to $557,929.62. Included in the receipts are loans from the insular treasury of $104,000. Included in the disbursements are $12,000 for loans repaid to the insular treasury. Most of the loans to provincial governments from the insular treasury were for the purpose of enabling the provincial governments to equip themselves with necessary offices, books, furniture, etc., at the outset before revenue had accrued. Those loans were $2,500 each. The larger loans have been made to meet emergencies caused by cholera and rinderpest.

All sums in the provincial statements above given are in money of the United States, local currency being reduced to money of the United States at the ratio existing June 30, 1902.

Very respectfully,

HENRY C. IDE, Secretary of Finance and Justice.

[Court of customs appeals, Philippine Islands. Case No. 1.]

In the matter of the appeal of Warner, Barnes & Co., Limited.

DECISION.

IDE, Judge:

On the 31st day of March, 1902, the appellants exported from the port of Manila to London and Liverpool, England, 127,500 kilograms, gross weight, of raw hemp, and on that date paid to the collector of customs for the port of Manila the sum of $95.63 United States currency for wharfage, and the sum of $956.25 United States currency for export tax on the hemp, both of which sums were paid in local currency, amounting in all to $2,208.95 at the authorized rate of exchange.

The duties imposed and collected were in accordance with the rate prescribed by act No. 230, entitled "An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Archipelago," enacted by the United States Philippine Commission on the 17th day of September, 1901. No question as to the classification of the goods or rate of duties to be imposed is involved in the protest or appeal. At the time of payment the appellants filed with the collector a protest against the imposition. The collector overruled the protest, and the appellants appealed from the action of the collector of customs to this court. The protest is in the following language.

"We beg to record our protest against payment of export duties amounting to

"We beg to record our protest against payment of export duties amounting to one thousand fifty-one and 88-100 dollars U.S. currency hereby made upon 1,000 bales hemp shipped per S. S. Pyrrlius to London and Liverpool, as per export declaration of March 29, 1902, No. 8, basing our protest upon the ground that the levying of export duties upon goods leaving United States is illegal under the Constitution of the United States, and we consider Manila a United States port."

In their appeal the appellants state their ground of appeal, in accordance with the provisions of the customs administrative act, to be:

"That the levying of export duties on goods leaving United States ports is illegal under the Constitution of the United States and that we consider Manila a United States port, for which reason legislation by Congress establishing such duties is null and void. It is respectfully requested that the papers in this case be transmitted to the court of customs appeals for its action; but we hereby make it expressly appear that this appeal to said court is not to be taken as a waiver on our part of the right to take up the question before the Federal courts of the United States, or before any other court of competent jurisdiction, to test the validity and constitutionality of the law under which these duties are levied and collected, or to recover the duties in case the law is declared unconstitutional by a competent court.'

It will be observed that while the protest and appeal are against the entire charges imposed by the collector, including the wharfage charges, neither the protest nor the appeal make any mention of the wharfage charges. It is therefore unnecessary to give consideration to those charges further than to say that they appear to be entirely in accordance with the existing law and that the action of the collector of customs in respect to them is necessarily affirmed.

The duties in question were imposed by virtue of section 13 of act No. 230, above referred to. After the passage of that act, and before the imposition of the duties in question, the Congress of the United States, on the 8th day of March, 1902, passed an act entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes." the first section of which reads, in part, as follows:

"That the provisions of an act entitled 'An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Archipelago,' enacted by the United States Philippine Commission on the 17th day of September, 1901, shall be and remain in full force

All the provisions, therefore, of the tariff-revision law of 1901, passed by the Philippine Commission, including those provisions that enforce collection of export duties upon certain articles, have been reenacted by the Congress of the United States, and are in full force and effect here, unless it was incompetent for Congress to impose an export duty upon commodities exported from the islands.

The precise question involved in this appeal has not been decided in either of the "insular cases" recently determined by the Supreme Court; but in Downes v. Bidwell (182 U. S., 244) it was determined "that the island of Porto Rico is a territory appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States within the revenue clauses of the Constitution." Such being the status of the island of Porto Rico. as determined by the highest tribunal, the status of the Philippine Islands is established upon precisely the same basis. Both possessions were acquired from Spain by the United States at the same time and by the same treaty and cession, and are fundamentally controlled in their relations to the United States by the same sections of the Constitution. If the Philippine Islands are not a part of the United States within the revenue clauses of the Constitution, as the Supreme Court has determined, then the revenue clauses of the Constitution of the United States do not apply to them until Congress in its discretion shall have determined to make such application. Congress has determined not to make such application, but to make a different one, and to provide for the exaction of export duties in certain cases.

The decision of the Supreme Court in Downes v. Bidwell, in the fundamental ground upon which it is based, is decisive of the controversy in this case.

In the subsequent case of Dooley v. United States (183 U. S., 151) the plaintiffs sought to recover duties exacted and paid under protest to the collector of customs of the port of San Juan. P. R., upon merchandise imported into that port from the port of New York after the enactment of the Foraker act, so called, which required payment of duties upon merchandise coming into Porto Rico from the United States. The subject of the relations of the island of Porto Rico to the United States were there again considered, and the Foraker act was held to be valid, the judges again giving different reasons for the conclusions at which they arrived, but a majority concurring in the judgment that the plaintiffs were not entitled to recover. In that case, however, the contention was made, in behalf of the Government and sustained by the court, that, inasmuch as Porto Rico was not a foreign country but an appurtenant of the United States, the imposition of the duty upon goods exported from New York to Porto Rico was not an export duty in the proper sense, but was in the nature, not of a duty imposed for the purpose of adding to the revenues of the United States, from which the export took place, but for the benefit of Porto Rican territory into which they were imported. In the opinion of the court, Mr. Justice Brown says:

"There can be no doubt whatever that, if the legislative assembly of Porto

"There can be no doubt whatever that, if the legislative assembly of Porto Rico should, with the consent of Congress, lay a tax upon goods arriving from ports of the United States, such tax, if legally imposed, would be a duty upon imports to Porto Rico, and not upon exports from the United States; and we think the same result must follow if the duty be laid by Congress in the interest and for the benefit of Porto Rico. The truth is that, in imposing the duty as a temporary expedient, * * * Congress thereby shows that it is undertaking to legislate for the island for the time being.

"The action is really correlative to that of Downes v. Bidwell (182 U. S., 244), in which we held that Congress could lawfully impose a duty upon imports from Porto Rico, notwithstanding the provision of the Constitution that all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States."

It is thus apparent that the Supreme Court has at no time receded from the proposition that the islands acquired by virtue of the treaty of Paris have not become a part of the United States in such sense that the revenue clauses of the Constitution are applicable to them.

But in another view it would seem difficult to assail the validity of the export tax in question. It has already been seen that the Supreme Court of the United States has determined, in a manner that controls this court and all authorities in these islands, that the uniform revenue provisions imposed by the Constitution are not binding upon Congress in its legislation in relation to the insular possessions acquired from Spain by the treaty of Paris. The prohibition against export duties, upon which the appellants rely, is contained in Article I, section 10, paragraph 2 of the Constitution of the United States, in the following words:

"No State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be necessary for executing its inspection laws.

It will be observed that the prohibition is not against the imposition of an export tax, but against its imposition by a State, without the consent of Congress

Article I, section 9, paragraph 5 of the Constitution provides that "no tax or duty shall be laid upon articles exported from any State." Article III, section 3, paragraph 2, provides that Congress "shall have power to dispose of and make all needful laws and regulations respecting the territory of the United States." All three of these provisions of the Constitution must be given effect; neither can be deemed to be in force and authoritative to the exclusion of the other. The Philippine Islands are a State within the meaning of the Constitution, or they are not.

pine Islands are a State within the meaning of the Constitution, or they are not. Article I, section 9, paragraph 5, "No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State" appears in the article wherein are set forth the powers conferred upon Congress and the limitations thereon. Article I, section 10, paragraph 2, introduces the element of the consent of Congress in laying imposts or duties "on imports or exports." Manifestly the two paragraphs referred to are to be given, both of them, effect. One of them prohibits Congress of itself to impose a tax or duty on articles exported from a State, and the other prohibits the State, without the consent of Congress, from laying any "imposts or duties upon imports or exports except those necessary for executing its inspection laws."

In order to give effect to the provisions last referred to, it would seem that a State, with the consent of Congress, might tax commerce, including exports, more heavily than Congress had done by its uniform laws, and should be permitted to do so provided Congress assented thereto. If this construction is correct and the government of the Philippine Islands is to be deemed a State within the meaning of the sections of the Constitution referred to, then the export tax might properly be imposed by the legislative body of that State, which is the Philippine Commission, provided the consent of Congress be given, which consent has been given by the act of Congress of March 8, 1902, temporarily providing for the government of the Philippine Islands. But the term "State," as used in the Constitution, manifestly can not refer to a Territorial government. Whatever the relations of the Philippine Islands may be to the United States they are not a State within the meaning of any of the provisions of the Constitution. No decision of the Supreme Court gives such a meaning as that to the term "State." The provision that Congress shall make all needful rules and regulations respecting Territories of the United States, contained in Article III, section 2, paragraph 2, would be entirely inapplicable to a State, but is applicable to territory of the United States, whether that territory is part of the United States for all purposes or only appurtenant to the United States, to be governed by it, as held by a majority of the judges of the Supreme Court.

It is apparent, therefore, that the prohibition against laying a duty on articles exported from a State can neither by its terms nor by any proper explanation of the reasons which led to the incorporation of that provision in the Constitution, or the spirit of the whole instrument, be deemed to prohibit the imposition of an export tax in the insular possessions upon goods exported therefrom to a foreign country.

Again, the export taxes in question were imposed under the war power of the President of the United States, by virtue of the authority conferred by him upon the Philippine Commission for that purpose. It will be useless to repeat here the discussion as to the extent of the war power, and of its justification for the enactment of tariff legislation by the Philippine Commission, because a full expression of the views of this court on that subject will be found in the decision of appeal No. 18.

The imposition of the duties, therefore, is deemed to have been lawful and valid for all the reasons herein stated.

As to that portion of the appeal which attempts to reserve the rights of the appellants to litigate the same question over again in any other court, it is disposed of in the manner stated in the decision in appeal No. 8, by the same parties, and need not be here repeated.

The action of the collector of customs is affirmed, without costs to either party.

DECISION.

IDE, President:

The appellants on the 14th day of February, 1902, paid to the collector of customs at the port of Manila the sum of $880 as an export duty upon cigarettes and cigars by them exported from Manila to Hongkong. The payment was made under protest, and an appeal from the collector of customs in imposing the duties was duly made to this court. The grounds of the appeal are the same as the grounds stated for the appeal from the action of the collector of customs in imposing import duties as stated in appeal No. 18. These export duties were imposed prior to the act of Congress, March 8, 1902, reenacting the Philippine tariff-revision act passed by the Philippine Commission. The duties in controversy in this appeal were imposed by virtue of the tariff-revision act passed by the Philippine Commission on the 17th day of September, 1901, in pursuance of the power given to that body by the President of the United States as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, in his instructions to the Philippine Commission.

The reasoning of this court in its decision of appeal No. 18 covers the whole subject of export duties, as well as import duties, as a war measure. It is not necessary to restate the reasoning of this court in reaching its decision, as it is fully set forth in the decision of appeal No. 18.

The result is that the judgment of the collector of customs is affirmed, without costs to either party.

[Court of customs appeals, Philippine Islands. Case No. 8.] In the matter of the appeal of Warner, Barnes & Co., Limited.

DECISION.

IDE, Judge:

On the 10th day of March, 1902, the appellants paid to the collector of customs at the port of Manila $131.19, local currency, in payment of customs duties imposed upon merchandise on that day released from customs authority, which merchandise had been imported from New York, in the United States of America, to Manila. The duties imposed and collected were in accordance with the rates prescribed by act No. 230, entitled "An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Archipelago," enacted by the Philippine Commission on the 17th day of September, 1901. No question as to the classification of the goods or the rates of duty to be imposed is involved. At the time of payment the appellants filed with the collector a protest against the imposition. The collector of customs overruled the protest on the 21st day of May, 1902, and the appellants, on the 26th day of May, 1902, appealed from the action of the collector of customs to this court. The ground of appeal is thus stated: "That duties on goods coming into the Philippine Islands from the United States have been abolished, such duties being in conflict with the Constitution of the United States, which provides that duties shall be uniform throughout the United States, and further that no preference in the matter of duties, etc., shall be given the ports of one State over those of another, and as the Philippine Islands have become a part of the United States, legislation establishing such duties is null and void."

On the 8th day of March, 1902, an act was passed by the Congress of the United States, and approved by the President, entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes." Section 1 of that act provides "that the provisions of an act entitled 'An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Archipelago," enacted by the United States Philippine Commission on the 17th day of September, 1901, shall be and remain in full force and effect, and there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon all articles coming into the Philippine Archipelago from the United States the rates of duty which are required by the said act to be levied, collected, and paid upon like articles imported from foreign countries into said archipelago." The duties imposed upon and paid by the appellants were, therefore, assessed and collected by virtue of a law enacted by the United States Philippine Commission, which had been reenacted by the Congress of the United States prior to the payment of the duties in question. All questions, therefore, in regard to the powers of the President of the United States as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, and his authority by virtue of such position to impose customs dues upon imports coming into these islands, and the power of the Commission to enact legislation imposing such duties, may be eliminated from consideration if the Congress of the United States had authority to impose the duties, because the duties were collected under and by virtue of the act of Congress referred to, as appears from the record.

The insular cases, so-called, involving the status of the territories recently acquired by the United States by virtue of the treaty of Paris, were argued before the Supreme Court by the most eminent counsel, and before the public by distinguished law writers and jurists, including two ex-Presidents of the United States. Aside from the questions arising from the civil war, the Supreme Court has never had to deal with questions of greater moment to the future of our country. The decision of that tribunal upon any of the questions directly involved in the insular cases are controlling upon all authorities in these islands, and of necessity constitute the rules of decision when similar questions arise here. The reasoning and discussion of the Supreme Court in those cases exhaust the subject. There would be no utility in repeating that discussion here, and it is impossible to add to it any new element.

For the purposes of this appeal, therefore, the question is, What has the Supreme Court laid down as the rule of law applicable to the question at issue?

Downes v. Bidwell (182 U.S., 244) was an action begun in the United State circuit court by the plaintiff. Downes, against the collector of the port of New York (Bidwell) to recover duties exacted, and paid under protest, upon certain oranges consigned to the plaintiff at New York, and brought thither from the port of San Juan, island of Porto Rico, during the month of November, 1900, after the passage of an act providing civil government and revenue for the island of Porto Rico, known as the Foraker Act. Upon demurrer, the circuit court dismissed the complaint, and the action was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States by writ of error. Mr. Justice Brown, in delivering the opinion of the court, states: "This case involves the question whether merchandise brought into the port of

"This case involves the question whether merchandise brought into the port of New York from Porto Rico since the passage of the Foraker Act is exempt from duty, notwithstanding the third section of that act, which requires the payment of 15 per cent of the duties which are required to be levied, collected, and paid upon like articles of merchandise imported from foreign countries."

The question to be decided was whether the Foraker Act was constitutional, in view of the provision of the Constitution which requires that "all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." After exhaustive discussion, the conclusion arrived at by the Court, as stated by Mr. Justice

Brown, was as follows:

"We are, therefore, of opinion that the island of Porto Rico is a territory appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States, within the revenue clauses of the Constitution; that the Foraker Act is constitutional, so far as it imposes duties upon imports from such island, and that the plaintiff can not recover back the duties exacted in this case. The judgment of the circuit court is therefore affirmed."

Mr. Justice White, with whom concurred Mr. Justice Shiras and Mr. Justice McKenna, united in the judgment of affirmance, but stated their conclusions in these words:

"The result of what has been said is that while in an international sense Porto Rico was not a foreign country since it was subject to the sovereignty of and was owned by the United States, it was foreign to the United States in a domestic sense, because the island had not been incorporated into the United States, but was merely appurtenant thereto as a possession. As a necessary consequence, the impost in question assessed on merchandise coming from Porto Rico into the United States, after the cession was within the power of Congress, and that body was not, moreover, as to such imposts, controlled by the clause requiring that imposts should be uniform throughout the United States; in other words, the provision of the Constitution just referred to was not applicable to Congress in legislating for Porto Rico."

Mr. Justice Gray concurred in the judgment, and stated briefly his reasons for concurring. Among other things, he said, referring to territory acquired by the United States by military occupation or cession by treaty:

"If Congress is not ready to construct a complete government for the conquered territory, it may establish a temporary government which is not subject to all the restrictions of the Constitution.

"Such was the effect of the act of Congress of April 12, 1900, chapter 191, entitled 'An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes.

"The system of duties temporarily established by that act during the transition period was within the authority of Congress under the Constitution of the United

Four justices dissented, but the judgment of the court was that the Foraker Act was constitutional. That decision is controlling upon the question of validity of the act of Congress involved in this discussion, and of the contention raised by the appeal in the present case. The Philippine Islands were ceded to the United States by virtue of the treaty of Paris, as was the island of Porto Rico. Congress enacted a law, "An act temporarily to provide revenues * * * for Porto Rico, and for other purposes." That act was determined to be valid. The act under which the duties now in question were assessed and collected is entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes." The question raised under the two acts, for the purposes of this inquiry, are identical in principle. The validity of the legislation in question has been determined by the court of last resort.

In the case of Dooley v. United. States (183 U.S., 151), the plaintiffs, Dooley, Smith & Co., sought to recover duties exacted of them and paid under protest to the collector of the port of San Juan, P. R., upon merchandise imported into that territory from the port of New York after May 1, 1900, and after the passage by Congress of the act entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," which act required all merchandise coming into Porto Rico from the United States to be "entered at the several ports of entry upon payment of fifteen per centum of the duties which are required to be levied, collected, and paid upon like articles of merchandise imported from foreign countries.'

It will be observed that the language of the Foraker Act is the same as the act of Congress of March 8, 1902, relating to the Philippine Islands, except as to the rate of duty.

The defendant interposed a demurrer, and the question raised and discussed was, as stated by Mr. Justice Brown in the opinion, solely that " of the constitutionality of the Foraker Act, so far as it fixes the duties to be paid upon merchandise imported into Porto Rico from the port of New York." After full discussion and hearing, the judgment of the court below, sustaining the demurrer and dismissing the action, was affirmed, and it was held that the duties were properly collected. That case is in all respects like the present one and is decisive of the present appeal.

Attached to the appeal is a statement that—
"We hereby make it expressly appear that this appeal to said court is not to be taken as a waiver on our part of the right to take up the question before the Federal court of the United States, or before any other court of competent jurisdiction, to test the validity and constitutionality of the law under which these duties are levied and collected or to recover the duties in case the law is declared unconstitutional by a competent court.

The appeal at the request of the appellants, was regularly transmitted to this court. The appellants appeared in court and submitted their appeal for determination by the court of customs appeals. The appeal upon hearing has been regularly determined and adjudicated upon its merits, and the judgment rendered is intended to be a final determination of the controversy by the court upon the appeal submitted to it. It is the privilege of the appellants to come into this court and submit to its jurisdiction or stay out. They have elected to submit their controversy to the determination of this court and have thereby subjected themselves to such consequences as follow from the adjudication of the controversy upon its merits by a court of competent jurisdiction.

The action of the collector of customs in levying and collecting the duties in question is affirmed, without costs to either party.

[Court of customs appeals, Philippine Islands. Case No. 18.]

In the matter of the appeal of Warner, Barnes & Co., Limited.

DECISION.

IDE, Judge:

On the 15th day of February, 1902, the appellants paid to the collector of customs for the port of Manila the sum of $107.43, in United States currency, for duties imposed upon certain merchandise imported during that month from Hongkong, China. but the origin of the merchandise was San Francisco, in the United States. The payment was accompanied by a protest, based upon the following grounds:

"That duties on goods coming into the Philippine Islands from the United States have been abolished, such duties being in conflict with the Constitution of the United States, which provides that duties shall be uniform throughout the United States, and, further, that no preference in the matter of duties, etc., shall be given the ports of one State over those of another, and as the Philippine Islands have become a part of the United States legislation establishing such duties is null and void."

That portion of the protest which states "That duties on goods coming into the Philippine Islands from the United States have been abolished" is incorrect in point of fact; such duties have not been abolished at any time since they were first imposed after American occupancy, and have been collected during that whole period, and are still being collected, in all the ports of the Philippine Islands.

Doubtless the appellants in the statement referred to had in mind the case of "Fourteen diamond rings," Emil J. Pepke, claimant. v. United States (183 U. S., 176), and from the decision in that case, and from the action of the United States authorities thereon, inferred that duty on the class of goods here in question had been abolished; but no such inference is to be drawn. In that case Pepke went from the Island of Luzon, P. I., to the United States, arriving at the port of San Francisco, carrying with him fourteen diamond rings which he had purchased in the Philippine Islands, or acquired through a loan, subsequent to the ratification of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain and the proclamation thereof by the President of the United States. The rings were imported into the United States without entry or declaration, or payment of duties, and were seized by the customs officials as having been imported contrary to law, and the single determinative question was. Were the rings subject to duty by virtue of what has been called the Dingley tariff act of July 24, 1897, imposing customs duties upon "all articles imported from foreign countries?" Pepke claimed that after the ratification and promulgation of the treaty of peace, by virtue of which the Philippine Islands were ceded to the United States, those islands ceased to be a foreign country; they were no longer Spanish territory, they were American territory; consequently, the Dingley tariff did not apply to them. This contention was sustained by the Supreme Court, and in consequence thereof the Federal authorities directed that duties should no longer be collected upon goods that otherwise would have been dutiable, arriving in the United States from the Philippine Islands, and such continued to be the status of articles of that class until the enactment by Congress on the 8th day of March, 1902, of an act entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," whereby other provisions were made in regard to articles so imported into the

That decision, therefore, only determined that goods passing from the Philippine Islands to the United States were not dutiable under the Dingley tariff law, but did not in any wise determine the question as to whether goods coming from the United States to the Philippine Islands were or were not dutiable under the laws prevailing in the islands.

At the time the goods now in controversy were imported the act of Congress last referred to had not been passed; the duties were assessed and collected by virtue of an act passed by the United States Philippine Commission on the 17th day of September, 1901, entitled "An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Archipelago," which act by its terms took effect on November 15, The duties were such as that act imposes, and the determination of the issue raised in this case involves the question of the validity of the tariff-revision law of 1901, and the solution of that question depends upon whether it was within the power of the Commission to enact the law referred to. The appellants contend that, while duties might have been imposed in the Philippine Islands by military order, after military occupancy and before the ratification and promulgation of the treaty of cession, yet that after that time, when the islands ceased to be foreign territory, no power other than Congress could impose such duties, even if Congress had such power in the face of the constitutional provisions relied upon prohibiting the imposition of export duties from any State by Congress and requiring that duties shall be uniform throughout the United States.

In support of this contention reliance is placed upon one of the most recent utterances of the Supreme Court of the United States in its decision in the case of Dooley v. United States (182 U. S., 222). The action in that case was begun in the circuit court for the southern district of New York, sitting as a court of claims, to recover back certain duties paid under protest at the port of San Juan, P. R., upon several consignments of merchandise imported from New York between July 26, 1898, and May 1, 1900.

The court held that the duties imposed after July 26, 1898, and before April 11, 1899, the date of the ratification and promulgation of the treaty and the cession of the islands to the United States, which were imposed in the exercise of the war power, were valid; but that the duties imposed after the ratification and promulgation of the treaty and before the taking effect of the Foraker Act. by which Congress enacted a tariff to be imposed upon all importations to enter the island of Porto Rico, were unlawfully collected, although imposed by virtue of an amended customs tariff, promulgated by order of the President of the United States, a majority of the court saying:

"In our opinion, the authority of the President, as Commander in Chief, to exact duties upon imports from the United States ceased with the ratification of the treaty of peace, and the right to the free entry of goods from the ports of the United States continued until Congress should constitutionally legislate upon the subject."

That case being the most recent declaration of the Supreme Court upon the subject, although embracing the views of a majority only of the court, would be controlling in favor of the appellants in this case if there is no legal distinction such as to involve other principles of law between the situation in these islands, at the time of the collection of the duties in question, and the situation of the island of Porto Rico, at the time of the collection of the duties in Deoley v. United States, supra.

In certain respects the cases are analogous; the Philippine Islands, as well as Porto Rico, ceased to be foreign country upon the ratification and promulgation of the treaty and cession, and in each case Congress had not acted when the duties were imposed. The duties which were held to be unlawful in Porto Rico were imposed by military authority, and so, as it will appear hereafter in this opinion, were the duties imposed in the Philippine Islands.

In the majority opinion in Dooley v. United States, also it is said by the court: "The spirit as well as the letter of the tariff laws admit of duties being levied by a military commander only upon importations from foreign countries; and while his power is necessarily despotic, this must be understood rather in an administrative than in a legislative sense. While in legislating for a conquered country he may disregard the laws of that country, he is not wholly above the laws of his own. For instance, it is clear that while a military commander during the civil war, when in the occupation of a Southern port, could impose duties upon merchandise arriving from abroad, it would hardly be contended that he could also impose duties upon merchandise arriving from ports of his own country. His power to administer would be absolute, but his power to legislate would not be without certain restrictions—in other words, they would not be beyond the necessities of the case."

This language is be construed with reference to the state of facts to which it applies, not to a totally different state of facts.

Porto Rico, at the time referred to, was governed under military authority from necessity, because it had been seized as foreign territory by a military force, and had remained in the possession of the military authorities after the ratification of the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain. Yet that possession was during a time of absolute peace, and after peace had been officially declared by the two parties to the war, Spain and the United States. A military government may exist in times of peace, and it is then a government by law, and not one regardless of law. The decision above quoted in the Dooley case relates purely to what a military government may do in time of peace, and, however broad its language, can only apply to such a situation. What may be done in a military emergency for military purposes in time of war is a fundamentally different question. It therefore becomes material to determine the condition of the Philippine Islandsat the time of the enactment of the tariff-revision act of 1901, and to ascertain the character and source of the power at that time exercised by the Philippine Commission.

Upon the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay in May, 1898, and the capture of the city of Manila by the American forces on the 13th day of August following, the 'military authorities came into possession of the city and port of Manila and of certain territory adjacent thereto. That possession was gradually extended, but such extension met eventually with opposition on the part of the Filipino leaders and resulted in open hostilities in February, 1899. The beginning of hostilities was followed by war extending over nearly every portion of the islands to which the army of the United States went. The war was not a theoretical or paper one, but was an actual war. Military operations were conducted upon a large scale, the United States having equipped and transported to the archipelago two armies, and in December, 1900, more than 60,000 men and officers of the United States Army were here.

On the date of the enactment of the tariff-revision act, the 17th day of September, 1901, nearly 50,000 officers and men of the Army of the United States were in the archipelago, aside from several thousand Filipino scouts who had been enlisted to serve with the Army. A powerful fleet of the United States Navy was cooperating with the Army. The event most disastrous to the United States Army during the progress of the whole war—the "Belangia massacre"—occurred during the last days of September, 1901. The whole of General Smith's famous campaign in Samar occurred after the enactment of the tariff-revision law. General Bell's reconcentration campaigns in Luzon, in the provinces of Tayabas, Laguna, and Batangas, near Manila, all took place after that date. Both of the campaigns last referred to were in active progress at the time the customs dues in the present case were exacted. The consummation of peace between Spain and the United States on April 11, 1899, had no relation whatever to the existence or the termination of the war waged in the Philippine Islands between the American forces and the insurgents. Whether that war consisted in actual battles between organized armies, or was conducted on one side largely as a cruel, guerrilla warfare, it was war nevertheless, and all those measures were justifiable that a condition of actual war required. It is true that portions of the islands became pacified to a large degree prior to February, 1902, and that in portions of the archipelago civil government had been established, in pursuance of orders issued by the President of the United States as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy; but at that time garrisons were stationed all over the islands for the purpose of enforcing and maintaining order and for subduing the remnants of the insurrection.

As late as June 30, 1901, there were detachments of the army stationed at nearly 500 towns in the islands, and during all the time in question a large fleet of the United States Navy was in Philippine waters cooperating in the suppression of the insurrection. Congress had been constantly informed of the existence of the insurrection and of the measures taken to suppress it, and had repeatedly voted men and means for conducting military operations. At as late a day as July 1, 1902, Congress directly recognized the existence of war here by the passing of an act entitled "An act temporarily to provide for the administration of the affairs of civil government in the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," by declaring in section 6: "That whenever the existing insurrection in the Philippine Islands shall have

"That whenever the existing insurrection in the Philippine Islands shall have ceased and a condition of general and complete peace shall have been established therein and the fact shall be certified to the President by the Philippine Commission, the President, upon being satisfied thereof, shall order a census of the Philippine Commission.

pine Islands to be taken by said Philippine Commission.

On the 4th day of July, 1902, the President issued an official proclamation declaring that peace existed throughout the archipelago except in the Moro country and granting an amnesty to many political offenders. The political department of the Government had never until that day declared that peace existed.

The determination of the question as to whether the Philippine Islands were or were not hostile territory and whether war did or did not exist there rests with the Executive in the absence of Congressional action. It is a political and not a judicial question. As was said upon this subject by the Supreme Court of the United States in Williams v. Suffolk Insurance Company (13 Peters, 415):

"It is not the province of the court to determine whether the Executive is right or wrong. It is enough to know that, in the exercise of his constitutional functions, he has decided the question. Having done this under the responsibilities which belong to him, it is obligatory on the people and Government of the Union."

So, also, the same court said in the prize cases (2 Black, 635, 670):

"Whether the President, in fulfilling his duties as Commander in Chief in suppressing an insurrection, has met with such armed hostile resistance and a civil war of such alarming proportions as will compel him to accord to them the character of belligerents is a question to be decided by him, and this court must be governed by the decisions and acts of the political department of the Government to which this power was entrusted. He must determine what degree of force the crisis demands. The proclamation of blockade is itself official and conclusive evidence to the court that a state of war existed which demanded and authorized a recourse to such a measure under the circumstances peculiar to the case."

A state of war having existed in the islands at the time the tariff-revision act was passed, and at the time customs duties in question were paid, it becomes material to determine what action might properly have been taken by the military authorities for the suppression of the insurrection, including in the term "military authorities" all the agencies which the President, by virtue of his office as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, might lawfully employ. There has been much dicussion as to what may be done by military authority in territory which is the field of military operations and in which a state of war actually exists. Probably no better brief statement of the powers that may be exercised in such cases can be found than as stated in New Orleans v. Steamship Company (20 Wall., 387):

"It may do anything to strengthen itself and weaken the enemy. There is no limit to the powers that may be exercised in such cases save those which are found in the laws and usages of war. * * * In such cases the laws of war take the place of the Constitution and laws of the United States as applied in time of peace. * * * These principles have the sanction of all publicists who have considered the subject."

As stated in Lieber's Instructions for the Government of Armies of the United States in the Field (General Orders, No. 100, Adjutant-General's Office, 1863):

"Military necessity, as understood by modern civilized nations, consists in the necessity of those measures which are indispensable for securing the ends of the war, and which are lawful according to the modern law and usages of war."

To the same effect see Daniel v. Hutcheson (86 Texas, 61); Sargeant on the Constitution (330. 1 Kent's Com., 306); Flanders' Exposition of the Constitution (169, 184); Little v. Barreme (2 Cranch, 170); State v. Fairfield (13 Ohio Stats., 377), and all writers upon military law.

To strengthen itself and weaken the enemy military authorities may prohibit all trade with the country which is the seat of war, and may close or open all ports thereof as military necessity requires from time to time. If it may, as a military necessity, prohibit all trade in certain localities, it may permit commerce in the same localities upon such terms and conditions as to the payment of license fees or customs duties or the obtaining of permits, or as to any other conditions as seem best adapted to promote the end in view—the successful termination of the war.

Among the agencies necessary for subduing the enemy in a hostile country, not only are armies deemed essential, but the organization of governments as well for promoting the military operations of the occupying army as for preserving the safety of society. To both these ends revenue is necessary, and such means may be adopted to secure it as the exigencies require within the rules and usages of civilized warfare: Ex parte Milligan (4 Wall., 127, 141); Lieber's Instructions for the Government of Armies of the United States in the Field; Cross v. Harrison (16 How., 164, 193); Leitensdorfer v. Webb (20 How., 176, 177).

One of the most efficient methods of weakening the enemy in the Philippine Islands was the establishment, under the authority of the President, as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, of law and order, and the protection of individual rights, so far as was compatible with the situation, thereby affording the Filipinos who were in arms an example of what the Government of the United States proposed to do for them, and a direct object lesson, such that they might know that their rights were not to be destroyed, but that they were to have all the individual liberties that citizens of the United States have. The establishment of such governmental institutions, under whatever name, whether called military or civil, but under the military authority, was essential not only for the maintaining of order and for the collection of revenue, but also for weakening the enemy by withdrawing from its support the largest number of adherents possible who would be attracted by the beneficent system of laws provided for them.

On the 12th day of July, 1898, the President directed that, "Upon the occupation and possession of any ports and places in the Philippine Islands by the forces of the United States, the following tariff of duties and taxes, to be levied and collected as a military contribution, and regulations for the administration thereof, shall take effect and be in force in the ports and places so occupied * * * . Necessary and authorized expenses for the administration of said tariff and regulations shall be paid from the collections thereunder."

On the 26th day of October, 1898, Major-General Otis, in command of the United States forces in the Philippine Islands, issued an order containing a revision of the customs tariff and the regulations for such portions of the Philippine Islands as might be under United States control. From time to time, while General Otis was in command, modifications of the customs tariff were made and additional regulations adopted for the collection thereof, all by virtue of general orders issued from the office of the military governor. All the powers of the President, as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, in the Philippine Islands, whether of a purely military character or of an executive, administrative, or legislative character, were exercised through the military governor, and continued to be so exercised purely as military measures until the appointment of the present Philippine Commission, in March, 1900. The Commission was appointed by the President in the exercise of his power as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, and by his instructions to the Commission, under date of April 7, 1900, he entrusted to that body the performance of a certain portion of the duties which had before that time been performed by General Otis and his successor, Major-General MacArthur, as military governors. The source of authority remained as before—the military power of the Commander in Chief—but the instrumentalities of executing the commands of the President were in part new. The Commission was authorized and directed "to continue and perfect the work of organizing and establishing civil government already commenced by the military authorities, and to establish municipal governments, to organize governments in the larger administrative divisions, and to report the conclusions to the Secretary of War, and recommendations as to the central government. They were directed also to exercise those functions that were of a legislative character by making rules and orders having the effect of law, for the raising of revenue by taxes, customs dues, and imposts; for the appropriation and expenditure of public funds of the islands; the establishment of an educational system to secure an efficient civil service; the organization and establishment of courts, and all other matters of a civil nature for which the military governor had been competent theretofore to provide by rules or orders of a legislative character; and certain executive powers were also conferred upon them. The military governor remained the executive head of the government.

On June 21, 1901, the President appointed Hon. William H. Taft civil governor, and directed that on and after the 4th day of July, 1901, the executive power before that time vested in the Commission should be exercised by the civil governor, with the advice and consent of the Commission; that as to the portions of the islands wherein public order was restored and provincial civil governments were established, the executive powers theretofore exercised therein by the military governor should be transferred to the civil governor, and the subordinate governments should report to him.

The principal difference between a "military" government and "civil" government in the Philippines, after the appointment of the Commission and the civil governor, was that in the one case the civil affairs were administered by military officials or their subordinates, while in the other case the same affairs were administered by men not in the military service, but subject to the direct orders of the President, through the Secretary of War. It is also true that under the administration of civilians the individual rights of personal liberty were safeguarded by definite rules of law, instead of by the more harsh and arbitrary procedure that military exigency at times requires. But the purpose of the President in all that was done by him as Commander in Chief, either through the agency of military or civilian government, was to crush the insurection, weaken the power of the insurgents, organize the elements of society from the conditions of chaos to those of good order, and build up a structure that should eventually be relieved, when peace came, from the orders of the Commander in Chief, and be enabled, under the direction of Congress, to administer an orderly and permanent government in the islands.

After many months of careful consideration by the Commission and by the Secretary of War, and after many public hearings, the tariff-revision act was passed on the 17th day of September, 1901. It was not enacted in the ordinary manner of legislation by the Commission, but by special and direct authority of the President, and with his approval transmitted to the Commission in advance, through the Secretary of War. The enacting clause reads: "By the authority of the President of the United States, and with the approval of the Secretary of War, first had, be it enacted by the United States Philippine Commission." Under the law thus enacted the duties in question were imposed and collected. During the early portion of the military occupancy of the islands, millions of dollars of the customs revenues collected were devoted to purposes purely military and naval. Long after the enactment of the tariff-revision act the Philippine scouts were paid wholly from insular funds, mainly collected from customs duties. The whole administration, whatever name may be given to the government controlling the different portions of the islands, from time to time, was a military one, carried on solely by the power of the President as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, and so continued down to the 4th day of July, 1902, at which time the official proclamation of peace was made.

The second section of the act "Temporarily to provide for the administration of the affairs of civil government in the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," enacted by Congress on July 11, 1902, expressly treats the establishment of the tariff of duties and taxes as action by the "President of the United States. by virtue of the authority vested in him as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy." The same section by its terms ratifies and approves the tariff-revision act and gives to it all the sanction that Congress could give. That section reads:
"That the action of the President of the United States heretofore taken by virtue of the authority vested in him as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, as set forth in his order of July 12, 1898, whereby a tariff of duties and taxes as set forth by said order was to be levied and collected at all ports and places in the Philippine Islands upon passing to the occupation and possession of the forces of the United States, together with the subsequent amendments of said order, are hereby approved, ratified, and confirmed, and the actions of the authorities of the government of the Philippine Islands, taken in accordance with the provisions of said order and subsequent amendments, are hereby approved.

The tariff-revision act was passed by the Commission in pursuance of an amendment to the order of the President dated July 12, 1898, whereby a tariff of duties was ordered to be levied, and the action of the Commission in enacting that law was in obedience to an amendment to the said order. Its action therefore has by Congress been distinctly approved, ratified, and confirmed. It is unnecessary to discuss the effects that this ratification of the act of the Commission by Congress, as well as its ratification by the act of March 8, 1902, has upon customs duties before that time levied and collected further than to say that the two acts of Congress referred to constitute the most complete recognition of the exercise of the war power in assessing and collecting the duties in controversy that it is in the power of Congress to make. Both branches of the political department of the Government—the Executive and Congress—have united in declaring the tariffrevision act to be a war measure taken in time of actual war.

It necessarily follows from the foregoing facts that the duties in question were lawfully assessed by virtue of the exercise of the war power by the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, and that their imposition and collection were lawful.

Attention should also be called to the "Spooner amendment to the army appropriation bill," approved March 2, 1901, which provided, among other things:

"All military, civil, and judicial powers necessary to govern the Philippine Islands, acquired from Spain by the treaty concluded at Paris on the tenth day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and at Washington on the seventh day of November, nineteen hundred, shall, until otherwise provided by Congress, be vested in such person or persons and shall be exercised in such manner as the President of the United States shall direct, for the establishment of civil government and for maintaining and protecting the inhabitants of said islands in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property, and religion."

Without discussing the question of a delegation of the powers of Congress to the President, or a delegation of the powers of the President to subordinate officials, it is apparent that this legislation was based upon the war powers of the nation, and was in line with legislation that had been enacted after the close of the civil war in relation to the States that had recently been in insurrection in what are known as the "reconstruction acts," whereby military governments were authorized to provide for good order by martial rule in the several States men-The Supreme Court repeatedly refused to interfere with the operation of the reconstruction acts or the exercise of authority conferred thereby. State of Mississippi v. Johnson (4 Wall., 475); State of Georgia v. Stanton (6 Wall., 50); Handlin v. Wickliffe (12 Wall., 174); White v. Hart (13 Wall., 646). What was said by this court in the decision of appeal No. 8, by the present appellants, in regard to the appeal being without prejudice to their right to proceed in other courts, need not be here restated in detail, but is here reaffirmed.

The judgment is that the action of the collector of customs is affirmed, without costs to either party.

DECISION.

IDE, Judge:

On February 11, 1902, the appellants paid to the collector of customs, at the port of Manila, the sum of $80.91, as duties on goods imported from Spain to Manila. The duties were paid under protest, in the following form:

"In our opinion these duties have been collected illegally, and we therefore beg to state that we pay these duties only under protest, and that they are to be repaid in case American and Spanish goods will become free of customs-house duties by

The manifest purpose of the protest is to vindicate the claim that by virtue of article 4 of the treaty of Paris, whereby the Philippine Islands are ceded to the United States, Spanish merchandise is entitled to enter the Philippine Islands on the same terms as merchandise imported from the United States. No discrimination is made by the law under which the duties in question were assessed and collected between merchandise imported from the United States and similar merchandise imported from Spain. All imported merchandise of the same kind is assessed in the same way and at the same rates, without regard to the country of origin. The duties were assessed by virtue of act No. 230 of the Philippine Commission. which act has been decided by this court to be valid, in appeal No. 18, Warner, Barnes & Co., Limited, appellants, under authority given by the President of the United States, as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, and by virtue of the war power vested in him.

IDE, President:

On March 15, 1902, the appellants paid to the collector of customs, at the port of Manila, the sum of $642.60, as customs duties on goods imported into the port of Manila from Barcelona, Spain. The payment was made under protest in the following

"We hereby protest against your decision, liquidation, and assessment of duties as made by you on our importations below mentioned * * * claiming that the same are imported from Spain into the Philippines, the latter being a part of the United States, and as no import duty can be legally imposed on merchandise brought from one part of the United States into another, we hold also, that under the treaty of peace with Spain (art. 4) no import duty can be lawfully assessed on goods of Spanish manufacture brought into the Philippine Islands and not at the rate as charged by you; and we give notice that we pay all other higher rates than is claimed above as the legal rate under compulsion and to obtain possession of our goods."

The protest was overruled and was followed by an appeal to this court in due

EXHIBIT I.

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL, RELATING TO THE ORGANIZATION OF HIS OFFICE AND THE BUSINESS TRANSACTED THEREIN, FROM THE DATE OF ITS ORGANIZATION ON JULY 16, 1901, TO SEPTEMBER 1, 1902.

I have the honor, in compliance with the request of the honorable the secretary of finance and justice, to submit the following statement covering the organization of the office of the attorney-general and the character and volume of the business transacted therein from the date of the organization of the office on July 16, 1901, to September 1, 1902.

ORGANIZATION AND DUTIES.

The office of the attorney-general of the Philippine Islands was organized on July 16, 1901, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter III of act 136 of the United States Philippine Commission, and consisted of an attorney-general, a solicitor-general, an assistant attorney-general, a chief clerk, a disbursing clerk, two stenographers, and three escribientes. The duties of the office, as prescribed by law, are as follows:

(a) To attend the sessions of the supreme court and prosecute or defend therein all cases, civil and criminal, to which the United States or the government of the Philippine Islands is a party.

(b) To supervise the work of the provincial fiscals throughout the archipelago.
(c) To give opinions in writing to the chief executive and to the legislative body of the islands, the auditor of the public accounts, the insular treasurer, the general superintendent of public instruction, the trustee of any government institution, the provincial fiscals, and the chiefs of the various bureaus organized under the executive departments.

(d) To appoint employees, such as stenographers, escribientes, typewriters etc..

for all the courts of first instance in the islands.

(e) To appear and represent the government in all cases tried in the court of customs appeals.

(f) An additional duty has been imposed upon the office by the practice adopted by the chief executive of referring all pardon cases to this office before taking action thereon.

SUMMARY OF SEMIANNUAL REPORTS.

The scope and volume of the work of the office are indicated by a summary of my semiannual reports. These reports cover the work of the office for a period of eleven and one-half months, beginning with July 16, 1901, and ending with July 1, 1902, and are as follows:

Number of written opinions rendered by the attorney-general to the civil governor, the members of the Commission, the heads of departments, and other civil officials, including fiscals, justices of the peace, presidentes, etc.. Cases returned to the supreme court with the opinion of the solicitor-general. 408 402 Number of cases returned to the supreme court briefed and argued ...... 67 Subordinate officials for court of first instance appointed by attorney-general. 218 Number of petitions for pardon passed upon..... 171

In addition to the above, a large number of convictions have been secured by the supervisor of fiscals in the provinces, several trips have been made by the assistant attorney-general to the provinces for the adjustment of important matters, and a number of petitions for removal of presidentes have been examined and passed upon by this office.

The testimony in the San Jose College case has been concluded and the record printed both in Spanish and English, and brief of plaintiffs written by the attorney-general and filed in the supreme court.

REORGANIZATION.

After six months' experience, it became manifest to the Commission that the force as originally provided for was inadequate for the transaction of the volume of business that came into this office. Consequently, on the 31st of December, 1901, a law was passed amending act 136, increasing the salaries of its officials and augmenting the office force, which is now as follows: Attorney-general, solicitor-general, assistant attorney-general, supervisor of fiscals, chief clerk, four assistant attorneys-general, a disbursing officer, five stenographers, two record clerks, four escribientes, and one messenger.

CLASSIFICATION OF SUBJECTS COVERED BY OPINIONS.

It is but natural that the opinions of the office during the transition period through which we are passing should take a wide range and cover a great variety of subjects. Prior to the treaty of Paris, the Spanish law was the law of the land in these islands. The Spanish law is based upon the principles of the Roman law. After the acquisition of these islands by the United States, the local laws were modified by orders of the military governor until the United States Philippine Commission became the legislative branch of the military government. The Commission has added to the existing body of laws a large number of acts which amend or repeal the Spanish laws and the existing military orders on the subjects with which it dealt. These military orders and acts of the Commission very naturally bear the impress of the principles of the common law on account of the previous training of those who promulgated them. As a result we have a system of law based upon the Roman law, modified by important and, in some instances, hastily drawn legislation, which is permeated by the spirit of the common law. The task of interpreting and harmonizing the laws as they now stand has been a difficult and interesting one. An examination of the opinions of the office discloses the fact that they naturally fall under the following classification: Judicial opinions, political opinions, opinions on the church-property cases, pardons, and opinions on miscellaneous subjects.

Judicial.—The judicial work of the office has consisted principally in the dispatch of all the cases brought under the Spanish Government and pending in the supreme court at the time of its reorganization under the laws organizing the courts of justice in these islands; in representing the United States in the prosecution of criminal cases taken to the supreme court, either on appeal by the parties or in cases where the judgment of the lower court must be approved by the supreme court; in representing the government of the Philippine Islands in certain civil suits brought before the supreme court; in representing and defending public officials having charge of prisoners in habeas corpus matters where the arrest is deemed legal; since the organization of the court of customs appeals in likewise representing the government in that court in the prosecution of offenses punishable under the customs administrative act; and, finally, in directing and supervising the provincial fiscals by sending representatives of this office to aid said fiscals in the investigation and prosecution of persons charged with criminal offenses. At the date of the organization of the office there were records of about 400 criminal cases pending in the supreme court, which were immediately lodged in this office for examination and report. All of these cases have been dispatched within the period covered by this report.

Political.—Those opinions rendered at the request of the various heads of departments on questions relating to the duties of each department, the extent of their power, and their relations to the people may properly be called political. Many opinions of a similar character have been rendered at the request of provincial boards, municipal councils, and provincial and municipal officials in respect to their powers and duties and the relationship which exists between the province and municipality as established by the municipal code and the provincial government act. The civil governor, commissioners, and executive secretaries have submitted many questions relating to the interpretation of the laws. These consultations gave rise to a set of opinions which have endeavored to harmonize the conflict between the different laws, to indicate the manner in which the want of details and imperfections of the laws should in practice be overcome, and to recommend to the Commission, when deemed proper, the enactment of new laws or amendments in amplification and correction of existing legislation.

The church-property cases.—Another important branch of the work of the office is that which has arisen in connection with the so-called church-property cases. The Crown of Spain was very closely associated with the church—in partnership, so to speak—and there were a great many public trusts which were administered through the clericals, especially the educational trusts, because the clericals were interested in education. The problem which now confronts us is to determine whether these trusts were being administered civilly, or whether they were being administered as pious and religious institutions. When the rights of the Spanish Government passed to a government which can have no such partnership with the church, the question presented is an exceedingly nice one to determine as to whether these trusts should be administered by civil trustees appointed by the Government or should pass to the Catholic Church as pious trusts.

Prominent among these trust matters is the San José College case. The United States Philippine Commission, soon after its arrival in these islands, granted a public hearing in this case and disposed of the matter, so far as the Commission was concerned, by passing an act providing for the appointment of a board of trustees, whose duty it should be to conduct the College of San José as a school of medicine and pharmacy and to bring an action against the representatives of the church for the possession of said college, and vesting the supreme court of the Philippine Islands with jurisdiction to hear and determine the controversy. Pursuant to the provisions of this act a suit was instituted. After the issues were made up, a special commissioner was appointed by the court to take testimony. The taking of testimony was concluded in February of this year, and the record was printed in Spanish and English and filed with the court on the 7th day of June. Thereupon plaintiff's brief was prepared in this office and filed with the court on the 1st day of July, 1902, pursuant to the rule of the court relating to the filing of briefs in this cause.

In addition to the work done in this case, opinions have been rendered by the office on the legal status of the Hospicio de San José, Hospital de San Juan de Dios, and a partial investigation has been made of the condition of affairs of the San Lazaro estate. The fate of all of these cases will likely be determined by the decision in the San José College case. This case is now pending before the supreme court, but is not likely to be heard until an effort has been made to adjust all matters of dispute between the church and the government through the agency of the civil governor and the apostolic delegate.

Pardons.—The total number of petitions for pardon that have come into the office is 264. Of this number, 171 have been acted upon, while 93 still remain under consideration.

The pardon work has not been free from difficulty. The civil government fell heir to a large number of prisoners serving sentences imposed upon them by Spanish civil courts and Spanish courts-martial. In the former cases, the majority of the records had been destroyed during the insurrections and wars which have harassed the country since 1896. In the latter, the records have been removed to Spain and are, therefore, inaccessible. The inquisitorial criminal procedure under the Spanish law and the delays in trying cases in a great many instances deprived accused persons of an opportunity to defend themselves. It is also true that trials by courts-martial were of such character that a defendant's rights were often completely ignored. Humanity and justice required that petitions from these unfortunate people be liberally granted, but the danger of turning at large professional criminals, ladrones, to further afflict a country already suffering from this pest was one not to be lightly considered.

Upon the termination of the purely military government all those prisoners convicted by provost courts were turned over to the civil authorities. It has been difficult to deal with this class of cases for the reason that these courts kept no records beyond noting the charges, specifications, findings, and sentence. It necessarily happens that sentences of military courts are rigorous, and it has therefore been the policy of this department to recommend a remission of at least the fines, in ordinary

cases

Finally, the amnesty proclamation of July 4, last, has been the source of many petitions for pardon. It has not always been easy to determine from the facts presented whether the offenses came within the proclamation or not, especially those denominated "political" offenses, since for its determination all depends upon the motive which induced its commission, and a clear line has never been drawn between insurgents who come within the clause and ladrones who do not.

Digitized by Google

Recently some confusion has arisen in regard to the pardoning power in cases tried by military commissions growing out of the abolition of the office of military governor in these islands. The matter has been resolved by an agreement between the civil governor and the general commanding the division, drawn on the following basis: Applications for clemency by persons convicted of crimes against the members of the United States Army, or against persons in some way identified with the Army while engaged in suppressing the insurrection in violation of the laws of war, are to be forwarded by the general commanding the Division of the Philippines to the War Department to be acted upon by the President. All other petitions for pardon by persons convicted by provost courts or military commissions during the period of insurrection are to be submitted to the civil governor, to be acted upon by him or to be forwarded by him to the War Department to be acted upon by the President.

Miscellaneous.—In addition to the foregoing, a number of important opinions have been rendered by the office, which do not properly come under the above classification. An opinion has been given on subsidies and franchises granted by the late Spanish Government to certain companies, such as the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, and the Manila and Dagupan Railway Company. Opinions have also been rendered on subjects of public lands, mines, quarries, patents, and banking institutions, and on the application for the regulations of the Spanish Government in regard to the industrial tax still in force.

Under the head of miscellaneous work may be mentioned the work done by the representatives of the office in the so-called "libel and sedition" cases, in the court of first instance of Manila. On account of the vocation of the defendants, these cases attracted more than ordinary attention. The prosecution of the editor and proprietor of the Manila Freedom for libeling Commissioner Legarda resulted in a conviction of the accused, who was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 and serve a term of imprisonment for six months at hard labor. In the "sedition" case the same parties were convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 each. The prosecution of Editor Valdez, of the Miau, for libeling Commissioner T. H. Pardo de Tavera resulted in his conviction and a sentence to pay a fine of $1,000 and to serve a term of six months' imprisonment. All of the above-mentioned cases are now pending in the supreme court on appeal. The effect of this litigation upon the attitude of the newspapers toward the government in these islands has been marked. The practice of attacking the private character of individuals and holding officials up to execration and contempt has given way to fair and just criticism.

Respectfully,

LEBBEUS R. WILFLEY,
Attorney-General for the Philippine Islands.

BURRAU OF THE INSULAR COLD-STORAGE AND ICE PLANT, MANILA, P. I.—FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE OPERATION OF THE PLANT FOR THE FISCAL YEAR BEGINNING JULY 1, 1901, AND ENDING JUNE 80, 1902.

[Capt. Leon S. Roudiez, Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. Army, superintendent.]

OFFICIAL DESIGNATION OF THE PLANT.

Until September 9, 1901, this plant had no official designation. It was called by some "The ice plant," by others "The refrigerating plant," "The government ice plant," and "The government cold storage." It was also known by other names, such as "The U. S. refrigerating and ice-making plant," "The U. S. cold-storage and ice plant." This last designation was the one used by this office. The matter was brought to the attention of the Commission by the undersigned, who suggested that as the plant was the property of the insular government, its official designation might be "The insular cold-storage and ice plant." This was adopted September 9, 1901. (See copy of resolution hereto appended and marked "Exhibit A.")

CONDITIONS AT BEGINNING OF FISCAL YEAR.

The plant was practically completed and had actually began operations in May, 1901, but was not in position to derive adequate revenues for the duty performed until the first month of the present fiscal year. The 1st day of July found the plant fully prepared to meet any demand that might be made upon it, in either ice or cold-storage space, up to its full capacity. (See list of stores on hand July 1 and received during the year, also statement of ice sold during the same period, hereto appended and marked respectively Exhibits "B," "C," "D," and "E.") The revenues for the entire year show a steady increase. (See statement of revenues for the fiscal year and statement of ice sold during the months of July and August, 1901, and June, 1902, hereto appended and marked respectively Exhibits "C," "D," "E," and "F.")

BUSINESS WITH THE SUBSISTENCE AND THE QUARTERMASTER DEPARTMENTS, U.S. ARMY.

Under the terms of a provisional agreement between the insular government and the chiefs of each of these departments (copies hereto appended and marked respectively Exhibits "G," "H," and "I"), the insular government agreed to supply the subsistence department with ice at the rate of one-half cent United States currency per pound, and to lease a fixed amount of cold-storage space, consisting of five large and two small rooms, or about 242,855 cubic feet (not the entire available space), for the sum of $15,000 United States currency per month. This temporary agreement was far from satisfactory, but was necessary owing to the inability of the authorities having the matter under consideration to agree upon the terms of a regular contract for the entire fiscal year in time to have it take effect on July 1, 1901. This failure to come to a satisfactory agreement was due to some extent to the fact that this plant having been constructed for the benefit of the army in these islands, from appropria-tions made from insular funds, it was held by the representative of the insular government that the United States Government should pay for the ice and the coldstorage accommodation it received from the plant an amount sufficient to cover the expenses of operating it. The representative of the United States Government, on the other hand, held that the ice-making and cold-storage capacity of the plant was greatly in excess of the amount of ice and cold storage that would be required for the subsistence department, and that the operating expenses would necessarily be out of proportion to the benefit derived by the subsistence department. The statement was made at the time that 150 tons of ice per month (in a statement made a few weeks after the amount was increased to 350 tons) and about 200,000 cubic feet of cold-storage space would fill the requirements. (Attention is invited to the tables marked respectively Exhibits "C" and "D," showing the amount of space used by the subjection of the contraction of the contractio by the subsistence department in the months of July, August, and September, also the amount of ice delivered to that department during the month of July, the lightest delivery of the entire fiscal year.)

It will be noticed that the quartermaster department had to pay $2,154.95 United States currency (or 43,099 cubic feet, at 5 cents), in July, and $8,619.80 United States currency (or 172,396 cubic feet, at 5 cents), in September for the use, during those months, of cold-storage space in excess of the amount (242,855 cubic feet) which the subsistence department had stated would be the maximum amount required. matter of fact, the subsistence department has used the entire cold-storage space available from September 1, 1901, to the present date, and considerable crowding was required on several occasions to take in all the stores that required cold storage. The regular contract (copy hereto appended and marked "Exhibit J") was signed on October 1, 1901, and made operative from October 1, 1901. Under its terms the subsistence department leased all the available cold-storage space of the plant, 426,373 cubic feet (see table hereto appended and marked "Exhibit Ja"), and paid for it at the rate of 3½ cents United States currency per cubic foot per month, and paid one-half cent United States currency per pound for all the ice it required not to exceed the full capacity of the plant. From a commercial standpoint, the terms of the contract seem fair to both parties, with a slight advantage in favor of the subsistence department. This department paid a reasonable price for the cold-storage space it required (the rate for cold-storage space in the United States varies from 3 to 5 cents per cubic foot), and was able to purchase its ice for fully 50 per cent less than it had to pay before this plant began operations, to say nothing of the superior quality and better weight received. In addition to this, the plant supplied a steam launch and six insulated lighters for the transportation of all fresh meat from the refrigerating ship, at anchor in Cavite, to the plant and for the delivery of fresh meat and ice to the various docks for lake and bay shipments, to the railway station for northern shipments, and to all transports in the bay. All this without additional expense to the United States Government.

The agreement for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, is practically the same as the one for 1902, the only change of importance being that the sales and delivery of ice to the subsistence department are made under the provisions of an agreement signed by Col. C. A. Woodruff, chief commissary, Division of the Philippines, for and in behalf of the United States of America, while the supply of cold-storage space is under the provisions of an agreement signed by Col. C. F. Humphrey, chief quartermaster, Division of the Philippines, for and in behalf of the United States of America. The price for ice and cold-storage space is the same as during the preceding year.

BUSINESS WITH THE U. S. NAVY.

Cold-storage space and ice have also been supplied to the U. S. Navy under an informal agreement with the naval authorities at Cavite. (See correspondence on this subject hereto appended and marked "Exhibit M.") Some time before the end of the fiscal year 1902, it was found that it would be impossible to continue to supply cold-storage space to the Navy under changed conditions at the rate at which it had been supplied during the year. A communication was therefore written to the paymaster having the matter in charge explaining the reason for the increased price for cold-storage space. After some correspondence the naval authorities agreed to accept the terms proposed by the superintendent of the plant in his original communication. (See copy of correspondence hereto appended and marked "Exhibit N.")

SALES OF ICE TO OTHERS THAN THE ARMY AND NAVY.

Ice is sold and delivered to officers of the Army and Navy, civilian employees of the United States and insular governments, and school-teachers at the rate of one-half cent United States currency per pound. Persons not in the employ of the government desiring to purchase ice from this plant may do so by paying 2 cents local currency per pound and accepting delivery at the plant. In this manner the plant does not compete with the local ice manufactories who sell ice at 2 cents local currency per pound, but deliver it at the residence of the purchaser.

Cold-storage space has not been rented to anyone outside of the Army and Navy during the past fiscal year.

DISTILLED WATER.

As shown in Exhibit B, 7,750 gallons of distilled water were sold during the year, and 645,158 gallons were distributed free to all persons who came to the plant for it during the cholera epidemic.

The price of distilled water, when sold, was 4 cents United States currency per gallon, delivered at the plant in purchaser's own vessel.

GENERAL.

The plant was brought under the civil-service rules on July 16, 1901, section 7 of act 167. It was placed on a legal basis December 10, 1901, by act 315, organizing a bureau of the insular cold-storage and ice plant, to take effect January 1, 1902. This act has been modified in one or two instances by recent legislation. (See copy of act 315 and amendment, hereto appended and marked "Exhibit O.")

Respectfully submitted.

LEON S. ROUDIEZ, Captain, Twenty-fifth Infantry, Superintendent.

EXHIBIT A.

United States Philippine Commission, Secretary's Office, Manila, P. I., September 10, 1901.

Capt. LEON S. ROUDIEZ,

Superintendent Insular Cold-Storage and Ice Plant, Manila, P. I.

Sir: I beg to advise you, for your information and guidance, that the question of the formal adoption of a name for the cold-storage and ice plant which has been erected in Manila, at the expense of the insular government, having been presented to the Commission at its session of September 9, 1901, the following resolution was adopted:

On motion, resolved, That the cold-storage and ice plant which is now the property of the insular government shall be called hereafter and known officially as "The

insular cold-storage and ice plant."

Very truly, yours,

D. R. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

EXHIBIT B.—List of fresh meat and other supplies handled in cold storage by the insular cold-storage and ice plant on account of the Subsistence Department, U. S. Army and the U. S. Navy; also statement of ice sold to the U. S. Army and Navy and to the employees of the government; also statement of distilled and condensing water sold and distributed free during the cholera epidemic.

EXHIBIT G.

This indenture, made and entered into this the twentieth day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, by and between Colonel C. A. Woodruff, A. C. G., U. S. Army, chief commissary, Division of the Philippines, party of the first part, and Judge H. C. Ide, for and in behalf of the U. S. Philippine Commission, acting under the special authority of the Secretary of War, representing the Philippine insular government, party of the second part

Witnesseth: That the said party of the second part shall furnish to the subsistence department of the United States Army in the Philippine Islands ice, at the rate of three hundred and fifty (350) tons per month, each ton to contain two thousand (2,000) pounds.

That such ice shall be clear, pure, merchantable ice, made from distilled water, and be delivered, free of cost, by the party of the second part to the party of the first part, or his representatives, at the following places, as may be designated from time to time by the said party of the first part or his representatives:

(1) At the landing platform of the U. S. cold-storage and ice-making plant.

(2) At the launches sides at dock of the said cold-storage and ice-making plant.

(3) At the station of the Manila and Dagupan Railway Company in Tondo, Manila. (4) At transports' or other vessels' sides in Manila Bay.

At the three subsistence depots and at the sales depot in Manila.

(6) To such organizations, hospitals, or other places in the city of Manila, as may be designated by the said party of the first part.

That the said party of the first part agrees to pay to the said party of the second part on delivery or readiness to deliver, at the rate of ten ($10) dollars U.S. gold currency per ton of two thousand (2,000) pounds, for three hundred and fifty tons per month; provided further, that the charge for such additional quantity of ice as may be required by the subsistence department of the U.S. Army shall be furnished by the said party of the second part at the same rate, viz, ten ($10) dollars U. S. gold currency per ton of two thousand (2,000) pounds.

And it is further agreed that in consideration of the price herein made, that the said party of the second part shall, from month to month, deduct from the bill for ice purchased by the said party of the first part under this agreement, one-half (1) of the amount received by the said party of the second part for any and all ice sold to any and all parties, over and above the said three hundred and fifty (350) tons per month, contracted for by this agreement.

Whenever the ice presented for delivery under this contract is, in the opinion of the depot commissary, Manila, not of the kind or quality stipulated for, he shall reject the same, subject to appeal by the party of the second part to the chief commissary of the division, whose decision shall be conclusive in regard thereto.

It is understood and made a part of this agreement, that in case of a shortage in the quantity of ice manufactured by the said party of the second part in the said plant, that the Subsistence Department of the U.S. Army shall be first supplied before any other sales whatsoever shall be made to outside parties.

It is also understood and agreed that payments for such ice as is delivered and accepted by the party of the first part, shall be made on the last day of each calendar month by the party of the first part to the party of the second part (or such person as he may designate), upon presentation of properly certified voucher to the party of the first part, in accordance with law and regulations.

This agreement being made, based upon deliveries of ice at certain designated places, it is understood by the parties hereto, that the net weight of ice at the place of delivery, shall be the purchase weight.

It is understood and agreed that in case the ice-making plant of the party of the second part is destroyed, or so materially injured by typhoon, earthquake, fire or other casualty as to make the fulfillment of this contract impracticable, then this agreement shall determinate without liability for payment of damages by either party. It is further understood and agreed that this contract shall be in force from July first, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, to June thirtieth, A. D. nineteen hundred and two, and be subject to the approval of the commanding general, division of the Philippines.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals (both parties in his official capacity) the day and year first above written.

C. A. WOODBUFF, [SEAL.] Colonel, A. C. G., U. S. Army, Chief Commissary, Division of the Philippines, Party of the First Part. HENRY C. IDE,

For and in behalf of the U.S. Philippine Commission, Representing the Philippine Insular Government, Party of the Second Part.

Third. One (1) room; capacity, 45,825 cubic feet; temperature, 29° to 32° F. Fourth. Four (4) rooms; total capacity, 195,520 cubic feet; temperature, 14° to 18° F.

Provided, That all fresh beef and mutton to be kept in cold storage for the United States Government shall be received ex-ship, Manila Bay, and that deliveries of fresh beef and mutton and other stores shall be made by the U.S. cold storage and ice plant:

First. On the loading platform of the plant; second, launches side at plant's dock; third, at railway station, Tondo, Manila; fourth, transports' side, Manila Bay: And provided further, That the U.S. cold storage and ice plant shall not be compelled to make deliveries of fresh beef or mutton to transports or other Government vessels in the bay of Manila when the quantity of beef or mutton required to be so delivered shall be less than one (1) ton;

To have and to hold the same, with all the hereditaments and improvements thereunto belonging to the period of one (1) year from the first day of July, nine-teen hundred and one, to the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and two.

That for and in consideration of the above covenants and agreements the United States shall pay to the said insular government, or its agent, the sum of fifteen thousand (15,000) dollars per month or fraction thereof, in money of the United States.

That the payment shall be made at the end of each calendar month, or as soon as practicable thereafter, at the office of the disbursing quartermaster at Manila, P. I., in the funds furnished for the purpose by the United States.

That neither this lease nor any interest therein shall be transferred to any other party or parties, and in case of such transfer the United States may refuse to carry out this lease either with the transferer or the transferee, but all rights of action for any breach of this lease by said insular government are reserved to the United States.

That no Member of or Delegate to Congress, nor any person belonging to, or employed in the military service of the United States, is, or shall be, admitted to any share or part of this lease, or to any benefit which may arise therefrom.

That in case any beef, mutton or other stores belonging to the United States Government shall be lost by perils of the sea or marine disaster within the harbor of Manila, while being transported to or from the U.S. cold storage and ice plant, the insular government shall not be liable for any loss or damage so sustained by the United States Government.

That in case the building belonging to the insular government in which the cold-storage space hereby leased is contained shall be destroyed by fire or earthquake, or typhoon or other casualty, or so materially injured by either of said causes that it is impracticable for the insular government to complete this contract, this contract shall thereupon cease and be determined without liability for damage on the part of either party.

The erasure of the words "of the county" and substitution of the word "island," in the sixth line of this (original) contract, and the ruling out of the clauses contained in this (original) contract, from line forty-four to sixty-one, inclusive, was made before signing, as was also the erasure of the word "said," in the fifteenth

That this lease shall be subject to the approval of the commanding general, Division of the Philippines.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto placed their hands the date first hereinbefore written.

INSULAR GOVERNMENT OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, By HENRY C. IDE, United States Philippine Commissioner.

Witnesses: H. H. CHRAL. PAUL S. CARTER.

EXHIBIT I.—Memorandum of temporary agreement for the conduct of the cold-storage and ice-making plant at Manila.

MANILA, P. I., June 29, 1901.

Whereas the Secretary of War has ordered that the cold-storage and ice-making plant at Manila shall be conducted by the insular government and at its expense, and that a contract should be entered into between the Philippine Commission representing the insular government on the one hand, and the commanding general of the Division of the Philippines representing the United States Government on the other hand, for the supply of ice and cold storage to the Army of the United States by the said plant; and

Whereas on the twentieth day of June, 1901, a contract for the supply of ice by said plant to the Army of the United States in the Philippine Islands was executed by Henry C. Ide, United States Philippine Commissioner, on behalf of the United States Philippine Commission, and by Col. C. A. Woodruff, A. C. G., United States Army, chief commissary, Division of the Philippines, which contract was, by its terms, to be in force from the first day of July, 1901, to the thirtieth day of June, 1902, which contract was approved by Major-General Arthur MacArthur, United States Army, commanding, on the twentieth day of June, 1901; and,

Whereas on the same twentieth day of June a contract for the supply of cold storage in said plant to the United States was executed by the said Henry C. Ide, in behalf of the United States Philippine Commission, and by Major Crosby P. Miller, quartermaster, United States Army, on behalf of the United States, which contract, by its terms, was to continue in force from the first day of July, 1901, until the thirtieth day of June, 1902, and which, although made on the twentieth day of June, bears date of the first day of July, 1901; and,

Whereas it is the desire of Major-General Arthur MacArthur that his successor, Major-General Adna R. Chaffee, United States Army, commanding Division of the Philippines, should pass upon the questions involved in said arrangement:

Now therefore, as a temporary arrangement it is hearby agreed that the incompa-

Now, therefore, as a temporary arrangement, it is hereby agreed that the insular government shall furnish cold storage and ice to the Army of the United States in accordance with the terms set forth in the two agreements above stated, and that payment shall be made therefor in accordance with the terms of said agreement until such time as a new agreement covering the whole subject shall be made, or until the said agreements shall be approved by Major-General Adna R. Chaffee, United States Army, commanding Division of the Philippines, and that the ultimate arrangements for furnishing ice and cold storage to the United States Army shall be such as may be hereafter embraced in a formal contract covering all the subject-matter, unless the existing contract above stated shall be approved by Major-General Chaffee.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto placed their hands on the date first hereinbefore written.

Exhibit J.

This agreement, entered into at Manila, Philippine Islands, this 1st of October 1901, between Colonel C. A. Woodruff, assistant commissary-general, for and in behalf of the Subsistence Department, U. S. Army, of the first part, and Hon. Henry C. Ide, secretary of finance and justice, for and in behalf of the insular government of the Philippine Islands, of the second part:

Witnesseth: That the said Colonel C. A. Woodruff, for and in behalf of the Subsistence Department, U. S. Army, and the said Honorable Henry C. Ide, for and in behalf of the insular government of the Philippine Islands, under special authority of the Secretary of War, covenant and agree to and with each other, as follows:

That the insular government of the Philippine Islands shall and by these presents does hereby demise, let, rent, and lease, to the Subsistence Department for its use, all the present available cold-storage space (about 428,931 cubic feet) in the insular cold-storage and ice plant, Manila, P. I., at the rate of 3½ cents per cubic foot.

To have and to hold the same, with all the hereditaments and improvements thereunto belonging, until June 30th, 1902. And the said party of the second part shall also furnish as much ice, net weight, per day, as may be required by the Subsistence Department, not to exceed the capacity of the ice plant, at the price of one-half of one cent ($0.005) per pound, the ice to be clear, pure, and merchantable, and made from distilled water, and in case of a shortage in the quantity of ice manufactured by the said party of the second part in the said plant, that the Subsistence factured by the said party of the second part in the said plant, that the Subsistence Department shall be supplied before any other sales whatsoever shall be made to other parties: Provided, That the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall deliver the ice purchased by the Subsistence Department at the following places: First, on the loading platform of the plant; second, launches' side at plant's dock; third, at railway station, Tondo, Manila; fourth, transports' side, Manila Bay; and the said party of the second part shall deliver ice to the places above enumerated without additional cost, and to such other places within the city limits of Manila as may be designated by the said party of the first part.

That payment for the cold storage herein provided for, and the ice delivered under the contract, shall be made monthly at the office of the chief commissary of the division on bills approved by him.

The insular cold-storage and ice plant shall furnish the insulated lighter necessary to receive, ex-ship Manila Bay, all fresh beef and mutton to be kept in cold storage for the subsistence department: Provided, That the subsistence department shall furnish all labor, checkers, etc., necessary to bring same to the scales or elevator at the outer doors of the cold-storage side of the plant, and to move same from one room to another whenever necessary for the convenience of the subsistence department: And provided further, That the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall furnish the use of its loading and unloading devices, carrying rails, elevator, and scales, as well as the services of the necessary mechanics to operate the same, free of charge to the subsistence department, whenever the devices can be used to facilitate and expedite the movement of stores in and out of cold storage.

That the insulated lighters and the steam tug of the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall be used to deliver fresh meat to transports in the harbor of Manila, and to the subsistence depot on the Pasig River: Provided, That all checkers and labor required for such services shall be furnished by the subsistence department, the insular cold-storage and ice plant to deliver the fresh beef, mutton, and other stores at the scales or foot of elevator at the outside door of the cold-storage rooms: And provided further, That the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall not be compelled to make deliveries of ice or to furnish insulated lighters for the transportation of fresh beef or mutton to U.S. transports or other Government vessels in the harbor of Manila when the quantity of ice to be delivered or of beef or mutton to be transported shall be less than one (1) ton.

The superintendent of the plant shall give receipts for the fresh meat and stores placed in cold storage, and the unit specified therein shall be the quarter of beef, specifying whether fore or hind quarter, the carcass of the mutton, the box, and the crate. The receipt for boxes and crates will state their gross weight and the name of the stores said "to be contained therein."

That in case any beef, mutton, or other stores belonging to the subsistence department shall be lost by perils of the sea or marine disaster within the harbor of Manila while being transported to or from the insular cold-storage and ice plant, the insular government shall not be liable for any loss or damage so sustained by the subsistence department.

That in case the building belonging to the insular government, in which the cold-storage space hereby leased is contained, shall be destroyed by fire or earthquake or typhoon or other casualty, or so materially injured by either of said causes that it is impracticable for the insular government to complete this contract, this contract shall thereupon cease and be determined, without liability for damage on the part of either party: Provided, That in the event of an accident to the machinery or other appliances of the insular cold-storage and ice plant, due to any inperfection in said machinery or appliances, or to the carelessness of the employees of the said insular cold-storage and ice plant, which renders it impossible to maintain the temperature of the cold-storage room at a degree of cold low enough to preserve the meat and the other stores belonging to the subsistence department, the insular government shall provide cold storage elsewhere for said supplies or pay to the subsistence department the money value of such of the supplies as may be so damaged as to be unserviceable, the amount to be determined by a military board of survey.

That neither this lease nor any interest therein shall be transferred to any other party or parties, and in case of such transfer the Subsistence Department may refuse to carry out this lease either with the transferrer or the transferee, but all rights of action for any breach of this lease by said insular government are reserved to the Subsistence Department.

That no member of, or delegate to, Congress, nor any person belonging to or employed in the military service of the United States is, or shall be, admitted to any share or part of this lease or to any benefit which may arise therefrom.

That this lease shall be subject to the approval of the commanding general, Division of the Philippines.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto placed their hands the date first hereinbefore written.

EXHIBIT K .- Certified copy of contract.

This agreement entered into at Manila, Philippine Islands, this thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and two, between C. F. Humphrey, assistant quartermastergeneral, United States Army, of the first part, and the insular government of the Philippine Islands, of the second part:

Witnesseth: That the said C. F. Humphrey, assistant quartermaster-general, United States Army, for and in behalf of the United States of America, and the said insular government of the Philippine Islands government and agree to and mich.

insular government of the Philippine Islands covenant and agree to and with each

 That the said insular government of the Philippine Islands shall, and by these presents does hereby, demise, let, rent, and lease to the United States of America rooms numbered 1A, 1B, 1C, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10 in the insular cold-storage and ice plant, Manila, P. I., embracing all the present available cold-storage space in said plant (four hundred and twenty-six thousand three hundred and seventythree cubic feet) to be used by the subsistence department, U. S. Army, for the storage of fresh meats and subsistence supplies, to have and to hold the same from the first day of July, nineteen hundred and two, to the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and three. II. That the said insular government of the Philippine Islands agrees to maintain a temperature of not less than eighteen degrees nor greater than twenty-four degrees Fahrenheit, when required, in all the rooms occupied by the subsistence department and to keep at all times in serviceable condition the loading and unloading devices, carrying rails, elevators, and scales appertaining to said plant and to furnish the use as well as the necessary mechanics to operate the same free of charge to the United States, whenever the devices can be used to facilitate and expedite the movement of store in and out of cold storage.

That the said insular government of the Philippine Islands shall furnish the insulated lighters and steam tug of the said insular cold-storage and ice plant to receive ex-ship Manila Bay all fresh beef and mutton to be kept in cold storage for the subsistence department, but the said insular government shall not be required to furnish the labor, checkers, etc., necessary to bring the same to the scales or elevator at the outer doors of the cold-storage side of the plant or to move the same from one room to another whenever necessary for the convenience of the subsistence department.

IV. That the insulated lighters and steam tug of the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall be used to deliver fresh meat to transports in the harbor of Manila and to the subsistence depot on the Pasig River, but the said insular government is not to be required to furnish the checkers and labor required for such service; the insular cold-storage and ice plant to deliver the fresh beef, mutton, and other stores at the scales or foot of elevator, at the outside door of the cold-storage rooms: Provided, That the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall not be compelled to make deliveries of or furnish insulated lighters for the transportation of beef or mutton to U. S. transports or other Government vessels in the harbor of Manila when the quantity to be delivered or transported is less than one (1) ton.

V. The superintendent of the insular cold-storage and ice plant shall give receipts for the fresh meat and stores placed in cold storage and the unit specified therein shall be the quarter of beef, specifying whether fore or hind quarter, the carcass of mutton, the box and the crate. The receipt for boxes and crates will state their gross weight and the name of the stores "said to be contained therein."

VI. The management of the cold-storage rooms aforesaid, the regulation of the temperature and the operation of all the machinery and plant used for producing cold and for transporting meat and other supplies from the river front to the rooms where they are to be stored, and for returning the same to the river front when needed shall be under the control and management of the superintendent of the insular cold-storage and ice plant.

VII. That in case any beef, mutton, or other stores belonging to the Subsistence Department shall be lost by perils of the sea or marine disaster within the harbor of Manila while being transported to or from the insular cold-storage and ice plant, the insular government shall not be liable for any loss or damage so sustained by the Subsistence Department.

VIII. That in case the building belonging to the insular government, in which the cold-storage space hereby leased is contained, should be destroyed by fire, earthquake, or typhoon, or other casualty, or so materially injured by either of said causes that it becomes impracticable for the said insular government to complete this contract, this contract shall thereupon cease and be determined, without liability for damage on the part of either party: Provided, That in the event of an accident to the machinery or appliances, due to any imperfection in said machinery or appliances, or to the carelessness of the employees of the said insular cold-storage and ice plant, which renders it impossible to maintain the temperature of the cold-storage rooms at a degree of cold low enough to preserve the meat and other tores belonging to the Subsistence Department, the insular government shall provide cold storage elsewhere for said supplies as may be so damaged as to be unserviceable, the amount to be determined by a military board of survey.

IX. That for and in consideration of the above covenants and agreements the United States shall pay to the said insular government of the Philippine Islands the sum of three and one-half ($0.03\frac{1}{2}) cents U. S. currency per cubic foot per month for all the cold-storage space by this instrument leased.

X. That payments shall be made at the end of each calendar month, or as soon thereafter as practicable, at the office of the disbursing quartermaster at Manila, P. I., in the funds furnished for the purpose by the United States.

XI. That neither this lease nor any interest therein shall be transferred to any other party or parties, and in case of such transfer the United States may refuse to carry out this lease either with the transferrer or transferee, but all rights of action for any breach of this lease by the said insular government of the Philippine Islands are reserved to the United States.

XII. That no member of or delegate to Congress, nor any person belonging to or employed in the military service of the United States, is, or shall be admitted to any share or part of this lease or to any benefit which may arise therefrom.

XIII. That this lease shall be subject to approval of the major-general, U.S. Army, Commanding the division of the Philippines.

In witness whereof the undersigned have hereunto placed their hands the date first hereinbefore written.

OFFICE OF CIVIL GOVERNOR OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, Manila, P. I., July 20, 1901.

Sir: I am just in receipt of the following telegram from Admiral Kempff, and desire to know, in order that I may answer the telegram, upon what terms you can store

the fresh beef and ice mentioned therein:

"I respectfully request to be informed if I can stow about 40 tons of fresh beef and 100 tons of ice in Government cold storage early next week. The Glacier will sail about August 1 and the Celtic will not arrive until early September, thus necessitating the cold storage of meat.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

WM. H. TAFT, Civil Governor.

Capt. L. S. ROUDIEZ, U. S. Army, In Charge Government Cold Storage Plant, Manila, P. I.

> OFFICE OF THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT, Manila, P. I., July 22, 1901.

His Excellency Hon. Wm. H. TAFT,

Civil Governor of the Philippine Islands, Manila, P. I.

Sir. I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 20, 1901, and replying thereto I would say that the fresh beef can be stored at the cold storage plant at the rate of $2 per ton or fraction thereof.

The navy ice can not be stored, but ice manufactured at this plant can be supplied to the Navy at the rate of $10 per ton, delivered at the plant's dock, Pasig River, near the Suspension Bridge.

The navy beef can be taken by our insulated lighters ex-ship Cavite.

Very respectfully,

LEON S. ROUDIEZ. Captain, Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. Army, General Superintendent.

Insular Cold Storage and Ice Plant,
Office of the Superintendent,
Manila, P. I., June 23, 1902.

Paymasmaster John Ross Martin, U. S. Navy, Cavite, P. I.

Sir: I have the honor to invite your attention to copy of correspondence herewith inclosed. This formed the basis of an agreement covering the keeping of beef and mutton for the Navy by the insular cold storage and ice plant. At the time this agreement was made the Subsistence Department, U. S. Army, although paying for the entire cold-storage space then available, used only about two-thirds of it, and it was thought that the navy beef could be handled in connection with the commissary beef and mutton, shifting it from room to room as required by the quantity of meat to be kept for the Subsistence Department. All the space being taken by the Subsistence Department, the charge made was intended to cover the cost of handling the meat, without any charge for refrigeration or storage. Early this year it was found, however, that the amount of fresh meat to be kept for the Subsistence Department would take up the entire space available, and in order to carry out our agreement with the Navy I found it necessary to fit up a small room for the special use of the meat kept for that Department. This caused an additional expense, directly chargeable against this duty, and it will be seen that under the circumstances it is practically impossible to take care of the navy beef at the present rate, which is $2 per ton. The United States Subsistence Department pays at the rate of 3\frac{1}{2} cents per cubic foot for the space it occupies, but for this amount we not only bring the beef from the refrigerating ship to the plant, but also deliver it to transports, etc. As in the case of the Navy these deliveries are omitted, I believe that a rate of 3 cents per cubic foot per month, or fraction thereof, would be a fair charge for the service.

The room now exclusively used for the navy fresh meat contains 9,979 cubic feet, and while it does not quite hold all the meat when first received from the ship, requiring shifting into and from other rooms, a few issues soon relieve the congestion and the room made to accommodate the meat safely and conveniently.

Ice can be supplied, as heretofore, at the rate of one-half cent per pound. Kindly give this matter your early attention, and oblige,

Yours, respectfully,

LEON S. ROUDIEZ, Captain, Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. Army, Superintendent.

U. S. NAVAL STATION, Cavite, P. I., July 29, 1903.

SIR: In reply to your esteemed favor of June 23, I have the honor to inform you that the commandant of this station has instructed me to advise you that he accepts the terms contained in your kind letter, viz, 3 cents per cubic foot per month for the cold storage of beef and mutton for the Navy for the fiscal year 1903.

Very respectfully,

John Ross Martin, Paymaster, U. S. Nary.

Twenty-fifth Infantry, U.S. A., Superintendent Insular Cold Storage and Ice Plant.

No. 315.—AN ACT Creating a bureau of the cold storage and ice plant, and providing the method of conducting said plant and the personnel and salaries of the employes therein.

By authority of the President of the United States, be it enacted by the United States Philippine Commission, that:

SECTION 1. There is hereby created a bureau for the purpose of conducting the insular cold storage and ice plant at Manila, and disposing of the products thereof, which bureau shall be under the general control and supervision of the secretary of finance and justice. The bureau shall have the entire charge of the plant and grounds belonging to it, and of the conduct of its operations in providing cold storage, manufacturing ice and sterilized water, and of the disposal of the room available for cold storage in said plant and of the ice and sterilized water therein produced, and of the transportation necessary for all purposes of the plant, in the manner in this act provided.

SECTION 2. The plant shall be under the immediate control of a superintendent, who shall be appointed by the civil governor, with the advice and approval of the United States Philippine Commission, and who, if a civilian, shall receive a salary at the rate of three thousand six hundred dollars ($3,600) per year; or if he be an officer of the Army detailed for that purpose, shall receive in addition to his pay as an officer of the Army, an allowance of five dollars ($5) per day in lieu of all expenses, except cost of official transportation, and to compensate him for all commutations and allowances from which he may be excluded as an officer of the Regular Army by reason of his detail for civil duties.

The superintendent shall give bond to the insular government in the penal sum of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), conditioned for the faithful discharge of all the duties of his office and proper accounting for all moneys and properties coming into his hands as superintendent, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the insular treasurer. He shall sell all the products of the plant and rent the cold storage therein, and collect all revenues due the plant, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained. He shall make estimates and requisitions for all supplies for the plant, and estimates for all appropriations necessary for the proper conduct of the plant: shall have charge of all records and books pertaining to the plant and its operations. He shall make an annual report to the civil governor, through the secretary of finance and justice, on or before the 20th day of July, showing in detail the financial operations of the plant during the previous fiscal year, and submitting any recommenda-tions which he may deem advisable in relation to the management thereof. He shall have power to regulate and apportion the duties of all employes of the bureau, with a view to securing the greatest economy and efficiency. He shall render all such reports and accounts as existing law requires, and shall likewise furnish to the secretary of finance and justice, at the expiration of each month, a brief statement of the

on or before the first of January of each year he shall submit an estimate for all material and supplies needed in the operation of the plant for the six months commencing with the first day of the next succeeding July, and on or before the first day of July of each year he shall submit estimates for all the material and supplies necessary for the operation of the plant for the six months succeeding the first day of January following, but estimates for salaries shall be submitted at such time and of January following; but estimates for salaries shall be submitted at such time and for such periods as are fixed by law for estimates in other departments of the gov-He shall have control of all transportation facilities, by land and water, necessary for the receipt of meat and other cold-storage supplies from the army and for delivering the same to the army, in accordance with contracts made by competent authority for that purpose, and for the receipt of supplies and material necessary for the operation of the plant and delivery of its products.

Section 3. There may also be employed in the conduct and management of the business of the plant the following-named employees, at the compensations hereinafter named, who shall be appointed by the superintendent, in accordance with the provisions of the civil-service rules:

EXHIBIT IV.

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PHILIPPINE ARCHIPELAGO,
OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR,
Manila, October 1, 1902.

The SECRETARY OF FINANCE AND JUSTICE.

Sir: In compliance with your request of recent date, I have the honor to transmit herewith a statement showing the receipts of the government of the archipelago and the provincial governments thereunder during the fiscal year 1902, as shown by the accounts submitted to this office but not wholly audited, and a statement showing the expenditures on account of the fiscal year 1902, to June 30, 1902, as shown by the accounts as rendered, the audit of which is likewise incomplete at this date.

I have added, in accordance with your verbal suggestion, a consolidated statement of the items entering into the general revenue accounts of the various provincial treasurers, and a supplemental statement covering the general revenue account of the treasurer of the archipelago to September 30, 1902.

I submit also a statement of the financial transactions of the government of the Subig Bay Naval Reservation, which, by direction of the President, was placed under the control of the Navy Department.

Respectfully,

A. L. LAWSHE, Auditor.

COMBINED STATEMENT OF THE RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PHILIPPINE ARCHIPELAGO FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1902, TO JUNE 30, 1902.

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PHILIPPINE ARCHIPELAGO,

OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR,

Manila, P. I., October 1, 1902.

Sir: Pursuant to your request, I have the honor to submit the following preliminary report, showing the receipts and disbursements of the government of the Philippine Archipelago for the fiscal year 1902, to June 30, 1902:

The audit of the accounts of the fiscal year is not completed at this early date, and the statements herein submitted are compiled from both audited and unaudited sources for the purpose of showing approximately the receipts and expenditures of the islands for the period stated. The amounts stated are, therefore, subject to such changes as the complete audit may indicate, but they will vary from the statements now submitted by a very small percentage.

The annual report for the fiscal year 1902 will be compiled and submitted at as early a date as practicable, as required by rule 38 of act No. 90, and will embrace all transactions of the fiscal year 1901 which remained unsettled when the annual report for that year was submitted, as well as all transactions during the fiscal year 1902.

THE TREASURY ACCOUNT.

The foregoing statement of deposits in and withdrawals from the Treasury embraces all transactions within the fiscal year 1902, without reference to the period for which the collections, as so deposited, were made, and also without reference to the fiscal year for the service of which the withdrawals of funds were to be expended.

In addition to the items included in this statement the Treasurer is charged on the books of the Auditor with a sum amounting, approximately, to half a million dollars United States currency on account of Spanish seized funds, and on account of money and property on special deposit, some of which items have no ascertained value. These charges are set forth in detail in the annual report for the fiscal year 1901, pages 16 to 21, inclusive. Pursuant to section 12 of the act of Congress of July 1, 1902, these seized funds and special deposits, under action of the Commission, are to be converted into ascertained amounts and carried to the general fund of the treasury.

LOSSES BY CHANGES IN RATIO BETWEEN INSULAR AND UNITED STATES CURRENCY.

Until January 1, 1902, the official ratio between local or Mexican currency and United States currency was two dollars of the former to one dollar of the latter. Due to conditions not necessary here to discuss, the commercial ratio between the two currencies began varying materially about this time from this ratio, and to meet the condition thus arising the official ratio was changed on the 1st of January to $2.10 of local currency to $1 of United States currency. It soon became apparent, however, that the local currency had been overvalued in this adjustment. Public dues in consequence were almost entirely paid in local or Mexican currency at the official ratio.

Local or Mexican currency continued to depreciate during the quarter, and the ratio was again changed on April 1 by the civil governor to $2.27 of local currency to $1 of United States currency. This ratio likewise, as it proved, overvalued local currency, which continued to be offered for public dues to the practical exclusion of United States currency.

RESULTING LOSSES TO THE TREASURY.

The treasurer had in his hands on the 1st day of January, when the change in the official ratio occurred, the sum of $9,937,720.53 local currency, which made necessary a credit in the gold expression of his account amounting to $236,612.39, this being in fact an actual loss in gold value to the insular treasury. Likewise on the 1st day of April the treasurer had $11,023,335.76 of local currency in his hands, and it became necessary to give him an additional credit in the gold expression of his account of $393,112.45 by reason of the change in the official ratio from $2.10 to 1 to $2.27 to 1, or a total of $629,724.87.

Some of the warrants drawn prior to January 1, 1902, were not presented to the treasurer for payment until after that date, and, while nominally expressed in United States currency, were payable in local currency at the ratio at which issued. This made it necessary to debit the treasurer with the gains to the gold expression of his account arising from this source, such gains to June 30 amounting to $37,033,49.

arcount arising from this source, such gains to June 30 amounting to $37,033.49.

The treasurer's account, while here expressed in United States currency, is kept in the high of a superpart of the large of the lar in the kinds of currency actually deposited and withdrawn.

The accounts of all disbursing officers having been expressed in United States currency, in anticipation of the adoption of gold as the standard of value, it likewise became necessary to credit these officers in their accounts with the difference in gold value between the local currency in their hands at the old ratio and at the new. The loss in gold value on this account was therefore very large, but the actual amount can only be stated when the accounts of the fiscal year are fully audited and aggregated in the ledgers of this office.

DIFFICULTIES IN THE ACCOUNTING.

Some of the difficulties encountered by this office in the settlement of the accounts of the fiscal year 1902 will be appreciated in view of the statement that at one time disbursing officers were handling two kinds of currency involving, in effect, five standards of value. They were expending appropriations disbursable in United States currency; appropriations, or appropriations disbursable one-half in United States currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency and one-half in local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to one; local currency at the ratio of two to rency appropriations disbursable at $2.10 to $1, and appropriations disbursable in local currency at $2.27 to $1. The difficulties arising under such a complicated system were almost insuperable, especially as all accounts were required to be stated to the War Department expressed in United States currency. The debit and credit differences to be adjusted were so numerous as greatly to impede the progress of the accounting work. In this extremity a provision was included in act No. 389 (section 4) which made unavailable all moneys undrawn from the treasury theretofore appropriated at a ratio other than $2.27 to $1, with certain specified exceptions.

SALARIES PAID IN LOCAL CURRENCY WITHOUT DISCRIMINATION.

Salaries of officers, clerks, and employees in the insular service were necessarily paid in local currency at the ratio at which the money was appropriated. This resulted in loss to the recipients of this currency, which was not equal in commercial value to the United States currency represented by the obligation. This was more especially true in Manila than in some of the provinces, where local currency continued to circulate in small amounts at even the old ratio of two to one. Whatever loss there was, however, was borne in just proportion by all, from the civil governor to the humblest employee. Many complaints, both written and oral, were made to the auditor, but as the accounts were settled according to law, this office was without further jurisdiction in the matter.

The rate at the present time and since July 7, 1902 ($2.35 to $1), perhaps slightly undervalues the local currency, as United States currency is now being paid in liberal proportion for public dues. Salaries are being paid in local currency at the same ratio and no complaints are being received.

SEPARATE ACCOUNTING NECESSARY.

Congress having failed to provide a stable currency for the islands, as anticipated, this office does not deem it longer practicable to continue the rendition of accounts expressed in United States currency. It is vital to the proper workings of this bureau that appropriations be made by currencies and that accounts of receipts and disbursements be likewise rendered separately by currencies according to the transactions. This will eliminate the necessity for all conversions from one currency to the terms of another, as well as the adjustment of debit and credit differences in the accounts which has resulted in much embarrassment and delay in the accounting work. Under authority of the Secretary of War and the Commission this change of policy is practically agreed upon and is being introduced as rapidly as possible.

ORGANIZATION OF CIVIL BUREAUS.

With the inauguration of a civil governor at the beginning of the fiscal year the organization of many civil bureaus in charge of civil officers ensued, and the disbursing officers were rapidly changed from military officers to civilian appointees under act No. 145. At the close of the fiscal year there were but few military officers disbursing insular funds except for harbor improvements, construction of roads and bridges, payment of native scouts, signal service, and for civil affairs in unorganized territory.

On September 6, pursuant to the provisions of act No. 222, the service was further organized by creating four executive departments. The tabulated statements of receipts and disbursements by bureaus embraced in this report are included for convenience under their respective department heads from the beginning of the fiscal year, bureaus organized prior to September 6 being grouped under the department to which then assigned.

THE REVENUES.

The following are statements tabulated by departments, bureaus, and offices, showing the revenues, under appropriate classifications, derived from insular sources during the fiscal year:

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND POLICE.

THE POST-OFFICE SERVICE.

The financial concerns of the postal service of the archipelago are conducted as in the United States. All expenditures are made pursuant to appropriations, but each postmaster, under specific authority of the director of posts, as provided in rule 34 of act 90, pays the expenses of his office out of the receipts of his office, or if his revenues are insufficient, from funds transferred to him by the postmaster at Manila, the designated depositary for postal revenues. The receipts and expenditures of the postal service are covered into and withdrawn from the insular treasury by warrant and counter-warrant, as provided in rule 37 of the act above cited, when the accounts for a quarter are audited and certified.

Following is a statement of the receipts and disbursements of the various post-offices in the archipelago to June 30, as audited:

THE PHILIPPINES MONEY-ORDER SYSTEM.

Prior to July 1, 1901, the money-order system of the islands was operated by the department of posts, but under United States control as part of its system, the money-order offices being treated as military stations of the San Francisco post-office, under authority of an act of Congress. The service was separated and became purely insular on the date named, but is analogous to that of the United States in all of its details.

Money orders issued in the United States and paid in the Philippines are charged to the United States. Orders issued in the Philippines and paid in the United States are charged to the Philippines. Under this reciprocal arrangement paid orders are respectively transmitted as remittances to the country in which issued. Ordinarily the balance on money-order account will be in favor of the United States, as greater remittances are made by money order to the United States from the Philippines than from the United States to the islands.

Cash remittances on account are also made from time to time to the United States to prevent the accumulation of excessive deposits in Manila on money-order account. There has never been remitted, however, an amount in excess of what would be found due if the audit of the accounts in the two countries were concurrent. Following is a statement of the money-order transactions during the fiscal year at

Following is a statement of the money-order transactions during the fiscal year at each of the various money-order offices in the islands to June 30, 1902, and a statement of the general account with the United States, as shown by the records of this office on said date:

An additional sum of $410,345 was remitted by the bureau of posts to the United States, and the same has been acknowledged by the postal authorities of the United States, but credit therefor was not claimed during the fiscal year 1902 by the post-master at Manila, because proper receipts had not been received by him from the postmaster at New York or San Francisco, the designated United States depositories for these funds. For the same reason the item is treated as "cash on hand" in the account of the Manila postmaster by this office, and is not included in the "general account of money-order transactions between the Philippine Archipelago and the United States."

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.

FORESTRY COLLECTIONS.

The forestry fees paid in the city of Manila and in provinces other than the one to which such revenue belongs are deposited in the insular treasury, subject to refund under existing law, to the province in which the timber was cut.

The deposits so made have been refunded, or are in process of refundment, to the province entitled thereto.

Forestry collections in organized provinces on account of timber cut in other territory.

PROVOST COURT FINES.

Prior to January 1, 1902, provost court fines assessed throughout the archipelago, under General Orders, No. 64, Headquarters Division of the Philippines, series of 1900, were not deposited in the insular treasury, but were disbursed where assessed for local purposes. This office was directed by the Secretary of War to state these receipts and expenditures, but thus far the accounts have not been secured with sufficient completeness to permit the same to be done. Under General Orders, No. 3, Headquarters Division of the Philippines, issued January 4, 1902, all sums previously collected and unexpended were required to be deposited in the insular treasury and proper accounting made. Under the latter general order the accounts have been rendered, covering the following collections from this source:

| Collected prior to January 1, 1902 | $2, 444. 982, 452. 27 |
|------------------------------------|----------------------------|
| Total                              | 4,897.25                   |

Of the above, the sum of $4,033.56 has been deposited in the insular treasury.

DEPOSITS ON ACCOUNT OF THE VISAYAS CONCESSION.

During the fiscal year deposits as stated below were made to the credit of the government of the archipelago by the Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph Company, Limited, of London, England:

Deposits to the amount of $4,256.01 were made during the fiscal years 1899, 1900, and 1901.

At the request of the honorable secretary of finance and justice this office undertook to ascertain the amounts due to and from the government under the concessions held by this company from the Spanish Crown, provided the same were recognized by the government of the archipelago. Correspondence ensued with the company relative to the matter which is in abeyance pending the receipt of the company's complete records from the home office in London.

THE CITY OF MANILA—CHARTER.

FINANCES OF THE CITY OF MANILA.

Under the Manila City charter, which became effective August 7, 1901, its government passed to the control of a municipal board. All revenues derived under the charter are deposited with the treasurer of the archipelago to the credit of the city. Disbursements are made pursuant to appropriations of the Philippine Commission, but under section 15 of the charter 30 per cent of the appropriations (disbursements) for the city are payable out of the insular treasury and 70 per cent out of the revenues deposited by the city to its credit. The deposits by the city to its credit during the fiscal year were $1,067,871.62. The actual collections, as shown by accounts submitted by the various officers, were $1,113,880.50. The difference represents undeposited balances in the hands of officers June 30, 1902.

The accounts for the city of Manila for the fiscal year 1902 are not completely audited; therefore, any statement of account between the city and the insular government on account of the fiscal year must be tentative in character.

This office has no definite information as to the outstanding obligations of the city on June 30, all of which were chargeable to the appropriations of the fiscal year 1902, but from the standpoint of the actual deposits made by the city, $1,067,871.62, and the actual disbursements herein shown, $1,533,706.64—three-tenths of which, or $460,111.99, is chargeable to the insular government—the city was indebted to the latter in the sum of $5,723.03.

Many items of expenditure under this head are not in reality expenses of the Commission as such, but are expenses of transportation of clerks and employees who came to the islands without definite assignment to a particular bureau, as well as expenses incurred in establishing civil government in the provinces. The printing and circulating of the acts, resolutions, and reports of the Commission, and the cost of cablegrams to the United States form a considerable portion of the contingent expenses.

The disbursing agent of Philippine revenues.

Mr. J. G. Jester, disbursing agent of Philippine revenues at Washington, D. C., under direction of the Secretary of War, makes disbursements on account of the obligations of the insular government in the United States, both from special appropriations and from funds transferred to him from appropriations to insular bureaus. During the fiscal year 1902 this officer made total disbursements of $766,725.57, which have been charged in this report to the departments, bureaus, and offices, respectively, in behalf of which the expense was incurred as the only correct method of truly stating expenses, as provided in rule 38 of act No. 90. The disbursing agent of Philippine revenues at Washington made disbursements, as stated below, which are not properly chargeable to any particular branch of the service, and they are therefore stated separately:

| Contingent expenses. Transportation Salaries and wages | 167, 75    |

The purchases and sales of the insular purchasing agent and those of the commissary officer of the Philippines constabulary are omitted from the foregoing summary of receipts and disbursements, as the debits and credits properly entering into these transactions would be equal except for a gain on accounts of a 10 per cent surcharge to cover cost of delivery of the goods. These expenditures are made from reimbursable appropriations, and all receipts from sales are deposited as repayments to such appropriations and not as revenue.

Likewise, loans to provinces to the amount of $104,000 and repayments of loans to the amount of $12,000 are eliminated. These loans are assets of the insular government.

EXPENDITURES FOR PUBLIC WORKS AND OTHER PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS.

An analysis of the disbursements herein summarized will show that a very liberal percentage of the total amount was expended for public works or improvements of various kinds of a permanent character, for which purpose a surplus may properly be applied and for which such funds are usually accumulated. A few of the leading items of expenditure for public works and permanent improvements are stated:

Vessels and launches for the revenue service.

The insular purchasing agent.—The insular purchasing agent, pursuant to the provisions of act No. 146, makes all purchases of supplies for the various departments, bureaus, and offices of the insular government, except in cases exempted by the civil governor as provided in act No. 231. Ten per cent is added to the cost of the articles so purchased to cover delivery. The purchases and sales of the insular purchasing agent to June 30 were as follows:

|                                                  | Debit.          | Credit.                         |

The sum of $222,168.90 does not represent the true value of the supplies on hand and those delivered to the various bureaus and not yet paid for, since, in accordance with act No. 231, the various bureaus are required to pay 10 per cent additional to the cost of the supplies as laid down in the warehouses of the insular purchasing agent, this 10 per cent being intended to cover expenses incident to delivery by the insular rechasing agent.

The constabulary commissary.—In connection with the Philippines constabulary is operated a commissary service, similar to that of the Army, save that no issues are made of supplies, all being sold. The proceeds of the sales, like those of the insular purchasing agent, revert to or reimburse the appropriation. The transactions for the fiscal year, so far as accounts have been rendered, aggregate as follows:

|                                                                                        | Debit.         | Credit.                      |

The sum of $90,654.25 does not represent the true value of the commissary stores now on hand, since all sales are made at an advance of 10 per cent over the cost of the stores laid down in the warehouses of the commissary, Philippines constabulary, said 10 per cent being intended to cover expenditures incident to transporting and handling the stores.

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES.

Under the provisions of act No. 83, as amended by act No. 133 and other acts, the revenue collected in the provinces and municipalities for local purposes is not deposited since July 1, 1901, in the insular treasurer, but is deposited with the provincial treasurer. That portion which accrues to each municipality is returned to its treasurer and disbursed by him under direction of the municipal board. The provincial treasurer exercises over the municipal accounts the functions of an auditor, and is by law required to examine the accounts of each municipality in his province at stated intervals. Each provincial treasurer renders a monthly account to the auditor for the archipelago covering all his receipts and disbursements, as in the case of insular officers, but as provincial, not insular, funds.

It has been the policy of the Commission to give needed assistance to the provinces as organized in various ways—by loans, by refunds of internal revenue and forestry collections, and by appropriations outright.

LOANS TO PROVINCES.

During the fiscal year, under various acts of the Commission, loans to provinces were made from the insular treasury, as follows:

REFUNDS TO PROVINCES FROM THE INSULAR TREASURY.

Paragraph 8 of section 1 of act No. 133, amending section 18 of act No. 83, in part, is as follows:

"In all provinces organized under this act, the Urbana tax, the industrial tax, the stamp taxes and the sums collected under regulations for the cutting of timber upon public lands, and all other taxes known as inland revenue taxes, shall cease to be levied and collected as revenue for the central government of the archipelago from and after the 30th of June, 1901, and shall thereafter be collected as provincial and municipal taxes by the provincial treasurers. One-half of the taxes so collected shall be paid into the provincial treasury, and the other one-half shall be paid into the treasuries of the respective municipalities in which they shall be collected. Collections derived from timber cut and forestry products on government land under the forestry regulation shall be regarded, for the purpose of this section, as collected in the province where the timber is cut or the forest products obtained, although actually collected in Manila or some other place. When the collections are thus made out of the province they shall be deposited in the insular treasury, and it shall be the duty of the chief of the bureau of forestry immediately to notify the provincial treasurer of the province where the timber was cut or forest products obtained, in order to enable him, through the military governor, to apply to the Commission for an appropriation of the sum so collected and paid into the insular treasury."

Section 37 of act No. 133 further provides:

"One-half of the internal revenue collections in any province organized under the general provincial act from January 1, 1901, until June 30, 1901, shall be due from the central government to the treasury of the province where collected, and onehalf of the internal collections in a municipality shall be due from the central government to the treasury of the municipality where collected, and the provincial treasurer shall forward his estimate for the amount due to the province and to the municipalities through the military governor, to the Commission for proper appro-The collections under this section shall be held to include collections under the forestry regulations for timber cut and forest products obtained in the province and municipality, though the collections are made out of the province.' Section 2 of act No. 163 says:

"There is hereby appropriated out of the insular treasury from funds not otherwise appropriated a sum sufficient to return to the provisional governments now or hereafter organized under the provisional government act all the internal revenue collections made between the 1st of January, 1901, and the 1st of July, 1901, in said provinces, in accordance with section 37 of act No. 133, one-half to be paid into the provisional treasury and the other half to be paid to the provisional treasurer, to be by him distributed to the municipalities in which the same were collected. authority for payment hereby conferred may be exercised from time to time in partial payments to provincial treasurers until all that is due under section 37 of act No. 133 shall be paid. The warrants for the same shall be drawn upon the application of the provincial treasurer in the amounts certified to be correct by the insular collector of internal revenue approved by the insular auditor. In so far as the manner of payment provided in section 37 of act No. 133 is inconsistent with that herein provided such section No. 37 is hereby modified."

Section 2 of act 311 appropriates from the insular treasury "all the internal revenue collections, including forestry collections made between the 1st of July, 1901, and such time as the provinces in which such collections have been made have been or shall be respectively organized, or until such time as the treasurer of such province shall have taken charge of the collections of internal revenue of such province," the same to be returned as provided in section 2 of act 163.

Under the foregoing provisions of law the following refunds to provinces were made during the fiscal year 1902:

GENERAL ACCOUNTS OF PROVINCIAL TREASURERS.

Following will be found statements of the general accounts of the various provincial treasurers arranged by provinces in alphabetical order. These statements are compiled from audited and unaudited sources. They show, however, the collections from all sources made in each province and its municipalities, by the provincial treasurer or his deputies, during the fiscal year, the refunds from the insular treasurer of internal revenue and forestry collections, under existing law, as well as loans from the insular treasury. The expenditures for provincial purposes are likewise shown, together with the payments to municipalities; balance due from each treasurer to the municipalities of his province as a whole, and the net amount in each provincial treasury June 30. The municipalities receive one-half of certain revenues collected. The municipal accounts are by law required to be examined quarterly by the treasurer of the province. The municipal treasurers have no accountability to this office.
